NAZIS CLAIM TO HAVE PIERCED MAGINOT LINE, FRENCH DENY IT

Burton Picked Over White for Senate

Nip-and-Tuck Race Features Ohio Primary

Cleveland Mayor Gains Advantage Through Large Cuyahoga Vote; Davey Wins Easy Victory Over Six Opponents.

By JOHN H. COLBURN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

COLUMBUS—Harold Hitz Burton for Republican U. S. senator and Martin Luther Davey for Democratic governor today crushed intra-party opposition to win primary nomination as Ohio voters blasted defiance at organization endorsements.

Rep. Dudley A. White, decisively trimmed by Cleveland's Mayor Burton, conceded defeat shortly before noon and wired him: "Congratulations and best wishes for a complete Republican victory in the fall. I will support the entire ticket." Burton's margin pivoted largely on a devastating plurality given him by his home town.

Davey, bucking rockribbed party leaders, overwhelmed six other candidates, but in a statement promised "There will be no reprisals against any Democrat."

Downstate returns often gave White a slight edge, but it was erased repeatedly by ever-mounting pluralities from populous Cleveland, where tabulations were slow. Incomplete returns from more than three-fourths of the state's 8,624 precincts indicated that the Cuyahoga county vote avalanche would give Burton a winning plurality of at least 48,000.

White, Norwalk publisher-congressman, carried the endorsement of Ed D. Schorr, state Republican chairman, but Burton made Schorr's alleged "boss dictation" a prime campaign issue. He contended, "want to be the people's senator, not Ed Schorr's."

Facing the Republican winner for the senate seat vacated by retirement of Vic Donahey, Democrat, will be former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster. He trounced former Rep. Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati preacher-politician, for the Democratic nomination.

Davey, hard-hitting, insurgent Democrat seeking a third term, was conceded the nomination—his fourth—as he swamped a seven-man field including organization-backed George White, who ran second. Davey, beaten by the Democrats for renomination two years ago, will clash again with Gov. John W. Bricker, who won a second term nomination without opposition. Davey beat Bricker in the 1936 Roosevelt landslide.

DOUBLE LOSS

Judge Jewell Loses Barn and Court Nomination.

DELAWARE —(AP)— Lightning failed to strike Judge Harrison W. Jewell in his fight for the Republican nomination for the state supreme court yesterday but it did strike his farm home near here.

Judge Jewell was beaten in the primary. The fire that followed the bolt that hit his 10-room house did approximately $10,000 damage. He said he would rebuild.

CONGRESS WAITS DEFENSE PLAN

Ready to Act Favorably on Any Recommendation By Roosevelt.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—A thoroughly alarmed congress today awaited President Roosevelt's recommendations for further tightening and streamlining American defenses.

Leaders on both sides agreed, as they followed reports of Germany's relentless swing through Holland and Belgium into France, that congress speedily would approve any additional preparedness program that Mr. Roosevelt thinks will keep the European conflagration from American shores.

It was possible that the president's special message on the subject would go forward today, more probable that it would be submitted tomorrow. The chief execu-

FILES SUIT IN BENEFIT CASE

Common Pleas Court Contests Unemployment Payment

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Payment of an additional $17,000 in unemployment benefits to Ohio miners idle during the 1939 bituminous field shutdown was contested today by a common pleas court suit filed by the Hocking Valley Mining company of Columbus.

The firm asks reversal of a bureau of unemployment compensation board of review decision holding 357 workers eligible for benefits. Administrator H. C. Atkinson originally denied payments on grounds that a strike existed.

A temporary restrainer forestalled payment of approximately $350,000 to employes of 23 other companies.

CITY OCCUPIED

Radio Announces German Troops Would Take Over Today.

LONDON—(AP)—W. De Vlugt, Burgomaster of Amsterdam, announced over the radio today that German troops would occupy the city late today.

"I do not doubt but that the citizens know how to maintain peace and order, as they have done so far," the burgomaster said in a proclamation.

Here's What Defeated Dutch Army

Here is a detachment of German tanks which led the Nazis' victorious drive through the lowlands. Many of the tanks, one report said, are equipped with "flame-throwers" (flame throwers), capable of spraying sheets of fire to a distance of 270 feet. These tanks were a material help in the subjugation of the Dutch army, which gave up its valiant but hopeless fight late yesterday.

Herbert Appointed to Take Chamberlain's Post at O.P.S.

Announcement was made today of the appointment of Joy A. Herbert as vice president and Mansfield division manager of the Ohio Public service company, to succeed Fred A. Chamberlain, who died of a heart attack May 6.

The announcement was made by T. O. Kennedy, Cleveland, first vice president and general manager of the Ohio Public Service, who was in Mansfield today.

The appointment is subject to confirmation by the directors of the company which is expected to be given at the next regular meeting on June 4 at Cleveland.

Herbert, who has been sales manager of the Mansfield division since 1925 said the promotion came as a "complete surprise." Herbert has been with the company for the past 22 years and had been closely associated with Mr. Chamberlain.

Herbert first became identified with the company in 1918 when he was made territory representative in the sales department at Elyria In December of 1924 he went to Ashland as commercial representative, and three months later, in March, 1925, came to Mansfield.

He held that position continuously until today when he took over his new duties as head of the Mansfield division.

Herbert is married, resides at 476 Marion avenue, and has two small children.

KNOWS SECRET

Bergdoll Has Information on New Weapon, Wife Says.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Mrs Berta Bergdoll informed President Roosevelt by letter today that her World War draft dodger husband "knows something important" about the "secret weapon" used by Germany.

The native-born German woman, who became Bergdoll's wife during the years he was a fugitive in Germany, said she talked with him yesterday in the Governors Island, N. Y., army prison where he is serving a sentence for draft evasion.

Mansfield Days Open Tomorrow; Bargains Ready

The war and the election, important as they are, today could not overshadow the fact that tomorrow is the opening of an annual merchandising event that is important at least to Mansfield shoppers. Today's News-Journal carries a special section devoted to it.

Mansfield Days will be observed tomorrow and Friday in 50 retail stores of the city, according to V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association, sponsoring the event. These stores will be designated with red, white and black banners.

Unusual values in practically all lines of merchandise will be offered when the stores open at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Items advertised on sale in today's News-Journal will be sold at those prices only Thursday and Friday, and on Saturday will revert to the regular prices, Lodde said.

COUNCIL GETS 'PROBLEM CHILD'

West Fourth Paving Tangle Expected to Be Cleared at Session Thursday.

Special session of city council has been called for 7:30 p. m. Thursday by Mayor W. J. Locke in an attempt to straighten out a tangle which has made the West Fourth street paving project a "problem child" for city officials.

A meeting of city officials, state highway men, the WPA highway supervisor and several city councilmen yesterday afternoon did little to simplify the problem and brought out an intimation that the state "would be very glad to drop the proposition and let the city take care of its street work."

Controversial facts which were settled by city council last winter were again brought out for discussion when Councilman

Respective Victors in Races For Sheriff, Commissioner at County's Primaries

NEWCOMERS SURPRISE

Dems Nominate Marriott For Judge, Wenning for Common Pleas Court Clerk.

Two nip-and-tuck Republican contests that were not decided until this morning and the surprising strength shown by newcomers in county politics featured yesterday's primary in Richland county in which 12,000 voters nominated 20 candidates for 10 county offices and helped choose district, state and national nominees.

The closest contest saw Ralph A. Schad, jr., of Mansfield nominated for sheriff by the Republicans by a margin of only 37 votes over Frank D. Deringer, Mansfield, and 86 votes over Berlyn V. McCready, former Mansfield reformatory guard and teacher.

In another Republican race in which the outcome was uncertain until the votes were all tabulated, Cyrus L. Shoup of Plymouth township and Harry Orewiler, Sharon township trustee, were nominated in a field of five candidates for the two county commissioner posts which will be voted on next November.

Shoup was high man, polling 2203 votes as against 1931 for Orewiler, and 1872 for Willard N. Groff, the runner-up.

On the Democratic side, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott captured the nomination for probate judge, getting a margin of 454 votes over Atty. A. S. Beach and far overshadowing A. B Mabee, the third man in the contest.

Wenning Beats Three.

Another heated Democratic battle left County Recorder Howard Wenning the winner over three

ITALY SORRY

Expresses Regret at Student Anti-Allied Threats.

ROME — (ANS) — In reply to a British demand for an explanation, Italian authorities today expressed regret over the threatening of British embassy officials by a mob of anti-Allied demonstrators.

The Italian apology, however, laid the blame for the incident squarely at the feet of British officials, declaring it was "exclusively" the result of the indiscretion of a staff member in tearing down an anti-British poster.

At the same time, it was learned, the officials disclaimed all responsibility on the part of the Italian government for the posters, pamphlets and demonstrations which for several days have been bitterly reflecting increasing anti-British sentiment.

Meuse Becomes Battle Front for 'Biggest Conflict'

Paris Reports Fierce Counter-Attack Drove Nazis Back Six Miles After They Invaded French Soil; Air Battle Called 'Terrific.'

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Reuters, British news agency, reported from Cairo today that the Allied fleet had put to sea from Alexandria for scheduled maneuvers.

(By Associated Press)

German troops sweeping into France in the sixth day of the war in western Europe have "pierced" the northwest extension of France's Maginot line, the German high command reported today.

The Nazi claim was disputed in France.

The French high command admitted Nazi legions had crossed the river Meuse under the impetus of a massive attack—both by land and air—but said the German tide had been stemmed and hurled back six miles.

German forces originally penetrated 10 miles beyond the river—or 20 miles into France—but the French said the German thrust had been reduced to a 4-mile salient south of the river by a fierce French counter-attack.

In London, the British air ministry described the battle raging around Sedan, France, as "terrific."

The air ministry said British fliers had strafed enemy troops and tank concentrations in repeated low-flying attacks with "highly successful" results, and said at least 15 German planes had been destroyed.

British losses were placed at 35 planes, which, the air ministry said, were "not considered excessive" in view of the results.

A Dutch radio report said German motorized troops were pouring into The Hague, the Dutch capital, which capitulated late yesterday when the Netherlands high command declared Holland's resistance was broken.

Germany besought Belgium to follow the Netherlands example and lay down her arms, threatened Great Britain with a blitzkrieg from the Dutch coast and hammered a wedge deeper into France.

The Belgians, allied with the British and French for the "greatest battle of all time," showed no signs of compliance.

Otherwise the war appeared to be stabilizing into a con-

SURRENDER: Hague Gives Up To Invading German Troops

(By United Press)

LONDON—German troops entered The Hague, capital of the Netherlands, today and Dutch troops surrendered their arms to them, the Holland radio announced.

Townspeople of The Hague awoke this morning to hear the roar of motors of low-flying German airplanes, the radio said, and at 8 a. m. (1:30 a. m. EST) a column of 100 German motorized vehicles drove into the city.

The broadcasts meant that Holland had joined the countries which the Germans had overwhelmed since 11 months ago today they entered Czechoslovakia.

Holland's queen and its government were in London, and the country—all but Zeeland province at the entrance to the river Scheldt—was conceded to the Germans. The Dutch fleet had joined the Allied navies.

A German voice, said to have been that of Lieut. Gen. R. Wenninger, air attache to the German legation to the Netherlands, broadcast "to the German foreign office" a request that Germany send representatives to the Hague, the Dutch capital "for discussions regarding steps to be taken to maintain order."

It was announced that Holland's air defense corps had been demobilized and that volunteers should go home. The blackout of cities was cancelled.

The Amsterdam radio had announced at 8 o'clock last night that Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, Dutch commander in chief, man, Dutch commander in chief, had ordered all troops to stop fighting. Fighting continued at Zeeland, however.

In ordering the troops to stop fighting, Gen. Winkelman said: "We had to lay down our arms because there was no other way out."

NEWS OF THE WAR IN PICTURES

WINSTON CHURCHILL—Britain's Man of Mars

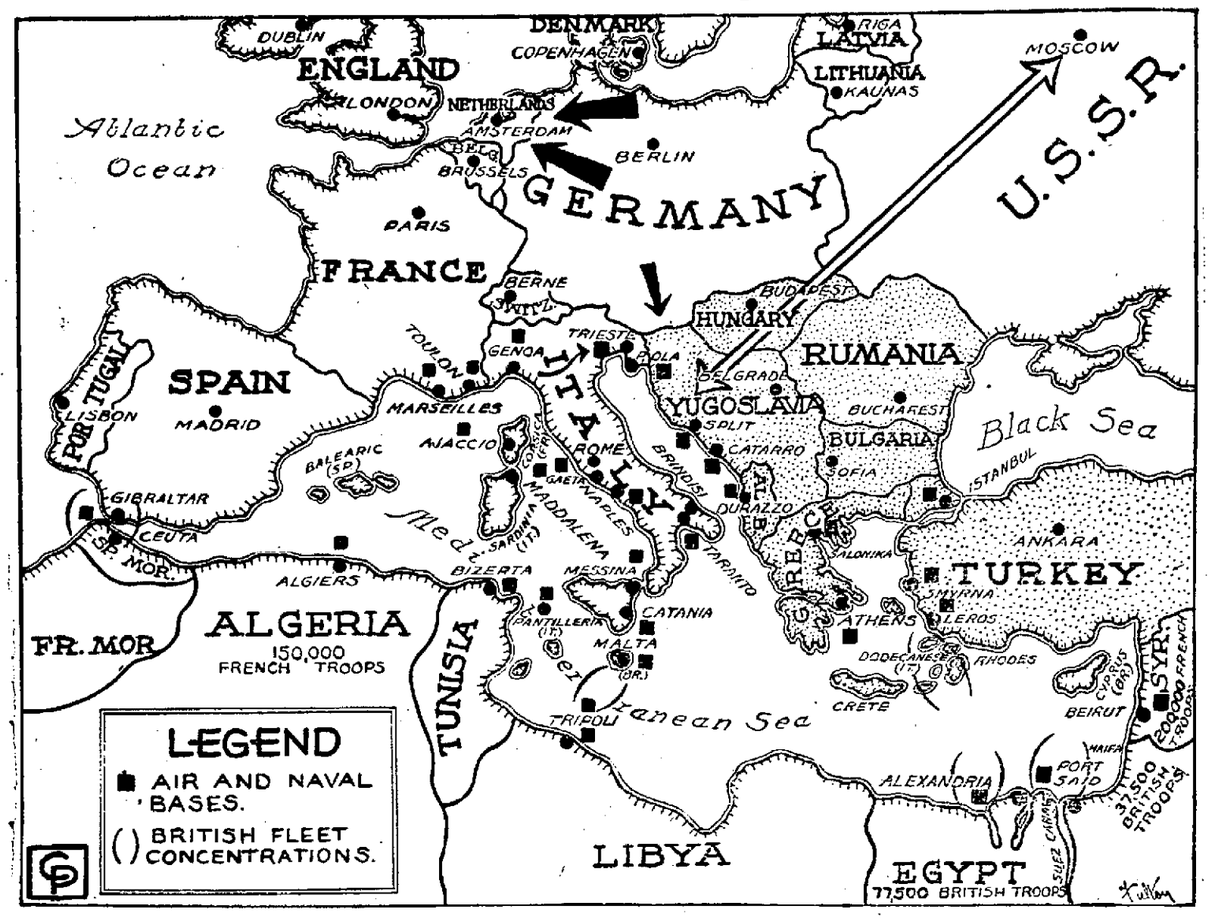
The kaiser and Churchill—1912

Lord Gort, British commander-in-chief and Churchill—1940

As secretary for war—1918 | As first lord of admiralty—1914 | As first lord of admiralty—1939 | Winston Churchill—today

Whenever Great Britain finds herself in a war she turns, it would appear, to Winston Churchill. He was first lord of the admiralty when the World war broke out in 1914. In 1917 he became minister of munitions; in 1918 he was appointed secretary of state for war and also for air. A critic of the Chamberlain government before hostilities began last September he was again made first lord of the admiralty at the outbreak of war. Later, major responsibility for Great Britain's conduct of the war was placed in his hands. The photos above depict some of the highlights of his career. He is a descendant of John Churchill, first Duke of Marlborough.

Mediterranean Next as War Spreads in Europe?



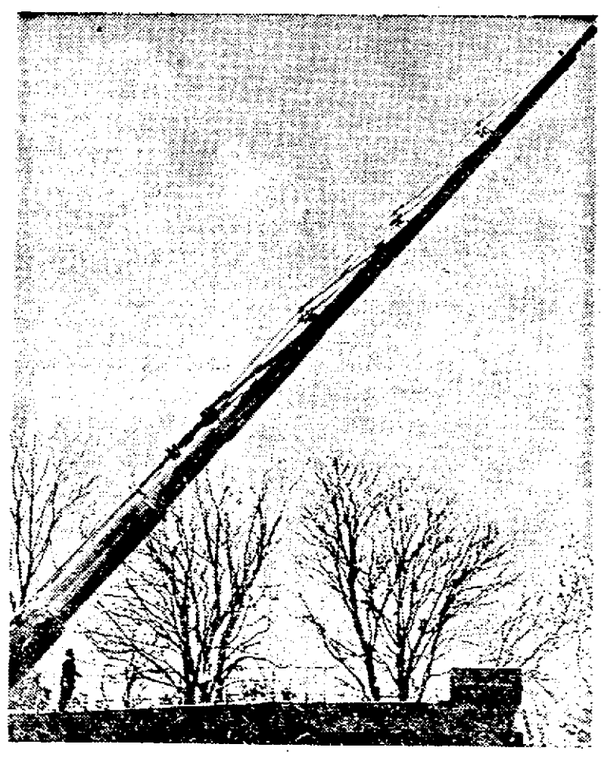
With most of Norway fallen to Germany and the long-anticipated invasion of Belgium, Holland and Luxemburg in full swing, Europe watched anxiously as it anticipated spread of the war to the Mediterranean, which Premier Mussolini terms "Our Sea," but which Great Britain controls through her fortifications at Gibraltar and at the Suez Canal. Can Gibraltar stand the blows of modern guns and air attacks? is the big question. Can the British keep the Suez locked? The war clouds thickened when Britain ordered all British shipping out of the troubled waters. Next came Admiralty orders which sent an Allied fleet steaming to Alexandria, where it could keep a sharp eye on the Italians at the mouth of the Aegean.

Egypt announced that military preparations for defense of the country had reached maximum perfection. Turkish troops massed on the Bulgarian and Greek frontiers as Germany took up Italy's cry of aggression and claimed the Allies were about to land at Salonika. Yugoslavia was scared stiff as she suddenly found herself between pincers. Both Germany and Italy had massed troops near her frontiers. In desperation, she sent a trade mission to Moscow to confer with Soviet leaders, preparatory, it is believed, to forming a Yugoslav-Soviet alliance. Hungary began "taking vital steps for her protection" against German-Slovakia. Rumania again, in concert with Yugoslavia, turned down Germany's proposal that the Reich patrol the Danube, life-line of the Balkans. Through it all was heard the loud voice of Italy's Premier Mussolini that his country's rights must be respected, that British fleet concentrations "were not friendly." Il Duce, himself, was concentrating his fleet, particularly at the Dodecanese Islands. On the Western Front, the new blitzkrieg into Holland, Belgium and Luxemburg threatened France itself, despite her famed Maginot Line. Control of Holland would give the Reich airports close to the great industrial cities of England. However, extension of the war at last enables the Allies to come to direct grips with Germany.

French Queen of Seas Takes on U. S. War Planes

Loaded with a big war cargo, the French luxury liner Ile De France is shown prior to sailing from her berth in New York for a dash to an undisclosed port. As this picture was taken, warplanes were being loaded on deck. One may be seen on the after-deck, another on a barge alongside.

Nazis' Stratosphere Cannon



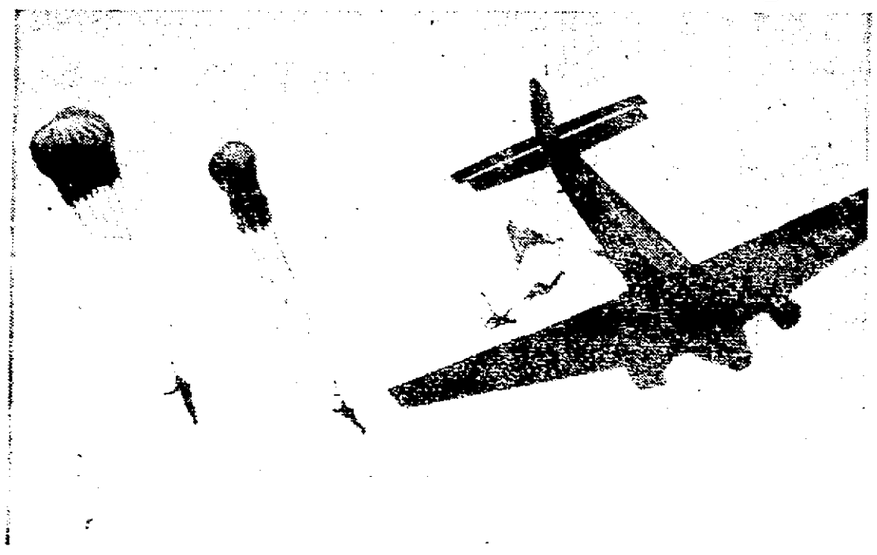
This, says Germany, is the big gun about which she has done so much boasting and which is now set up, ready for action, on the Western Front. Hurling shells through the stratosphere, it can shoot staggering (but secret) distances, Berlin claims. In World War I, Germany startled the world by bringing out the "Big Bertha" which shelled Paris from sixty miles away. (Central Press)

Will Germans Take Liege as in 1914?

When Germans marched into Liege in 1914

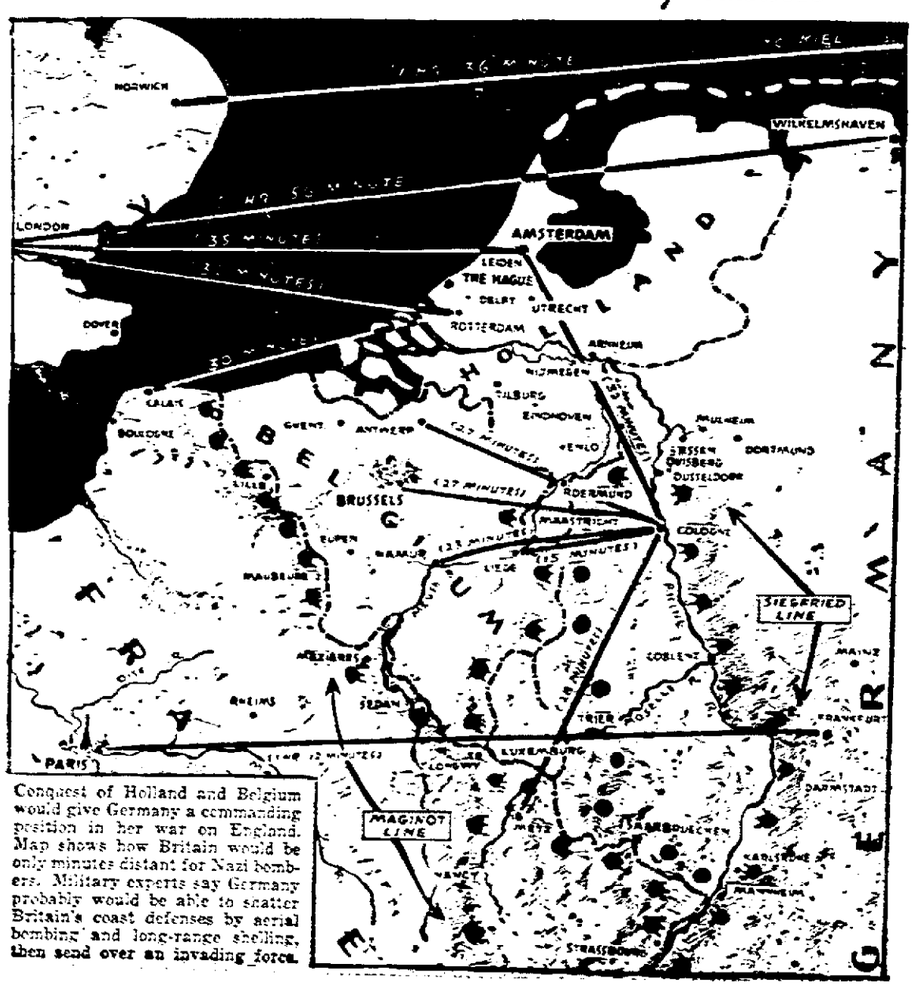
Stand of Liege, Belgium, against the mighty German army of 1914 was one of the epics of military history. Liege finally fell. Today, the citadel in Liege has fallen again into German hands.

How Germany Invaded Holland and Belgium



German aerial warriors like these have been dropped into Belgium and the Netherlands by the thousands. They present an easy target as they drift to earth from huge bombers and transport planes, but enough of them have survived to [illegible] several of Holland's key coastal cities. The Nazis claim to have occupied The Hague itself, the Dutch capital. (Central Press)

Timetable of Death for Nazi Sky Raiders

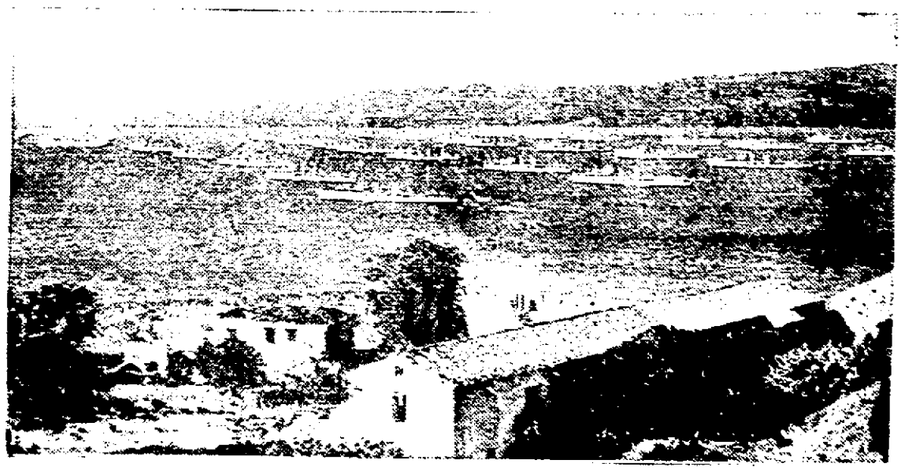


Conquest of Holland and Belgium would give Germany a commanding position in her war on England. Map shows how Britain would be only minutes distant for Nazi bombers. Military experts say Germany probably would be able to shatter Britain's coast defenses by aerial bombing and long-range shelling, then send over an invading force.

King Leopold in Command

As his father before him, King Leopold, III, of the Belgians, has taken command of the Belgian army in the present hostilities. King Leopold is shown here, top right, with Belgian Minister of Defense General Denis standing behind a field gun.

Will They Go Into Action in Mediterranean?



Will these British destroyers, [illegible] in the Mediterranean off Greece, go into real action? Tension increases in the Mediterranean as the British increase naval units in the Aegean sea off Salonika, and Italy concentrates air, naval and military forces in the Dodecanese isles.

HITCH-HIKER SETS RECORD FOR MILEAGE

Californian Thumbs 30,000 Miles Without Spending Cent for Trips.

BUTTE, Mont.—(U.P.)—In a career born of the 1938 depression in the motion picture industry, Harold Eckes, 29-year-old University of California at Los Angeles graduate, has hitch-hiked 30,000 miles in the United States and Canada without spending a penny for his transportation.

By his own estimate, Eckes has had $10,000 worth of travel experience during the past 16 months and he likes it so well he's going to continue traveling.

"Hitch-hiking isn't hard if you know how to go about it," he explained during a visit here enroute to New York City.

"The main idea is to look clean and presentable so people will know they can trust you. When I get to a town I take a hotel room, bathe and shave so I'll be clean the next day when I start traveling. The next day I see the business agent of my union to see if there's any work, and if there's not, I start for the next place."

Eckes holds an electricians' union card and says he has worked in every state.

Born in Denver, Colo., he has lived in Hollywood since he was 3 years old. He was graduated from U. C. L. A. in 1930 with a degree in electrical engineering and later followed his profession in the movie industry.

But when hard times hit the movies in December, 1938, Eckes was laid off. He found another electrical job in Texas and hitch-hiked there. The mode of traveling was to his liking and has been at it ever since.

He declares he is the only man who can prove he has "hitched" a ride in an airplane. That was some time ago when he picked up a 261-mile ride from Miami, Fla., to Havana, Cuba.

His most unusual hitch? A three-mile ride from Cristo, Mex., to Nuevo Laredo, Mex., in an ox-cart.

HERE'S HOW

Restaurateur Reveals Way to Man's Heart Via Stomach.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—It seems that the way to a man's pocketbook is through his stomach.

Speaking on how to be a success in the restaurant business Watson Green, Kansas City chain restaurateur, told the Oklahoma Restaurant association to try this:

Keep an unlimited supply of butter on the tables. Find out the birth date of the best customers and send them birthday cakes. When a customer is sick, send his favorite dish to hospital or home. Have fewer foods but cook and serve them better.

SELLING ORDERS ACCUMULATE IN BROKERS' HANDS

Action Sends Prices Slightly Lower Today as Shares Change Hands.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selling orders accumulated in brokers' hands overnight sent prices moderately lower today in early dealings in the stock exchange.

Blocs of 1,000 to 20,000 shares changed hands. Losses ran from 1 to 3 points or so.

* * *

As the second hour approached there was a mild lightening of pressure, and some comeback in prices. U. S. Steel was a bit ahead after a loss of more than a point.

* * *

Bonds followed share prices lower. Cotton broke more than $1 a bale. The "free" pound was a little lower, but relatively stable compared with recent performances. At Chicago wheat and corn declined.

Foreign markets were again disturbed at the war news, but neither at Paris nor London did securities dealings have the hysterical characteristics of yesterday's selling wave here.

Some traders here still found time to note that many domestic business indicators continued the spring improvement.

THEATERS

Huge Ice Rink in Scene.

Lana Turner is seen in a dancing role for the third consecutive time in "Two Girls on Broadway," the streamlined musical co-starring her with Joan Blondell and George Murphy. This picture is now showing at the Ohio theater. The story presents the adventures of a trio of small town hoofers who try to crash the Big Time. A novelty of the picture is an ice rink built to withstand the heat of the most powerful lights, and covers an area of sixty square feet.

* * *

Varied Features.

What is generally conceded to be the most popular of the modern ballads "Star Dust" inspired a new picture of the same name with Linda Darnell in the leading role. The perennially popular number is sung by Mary Healy in the film which is showing at the Madison theater. The co-feature is "Black Friday," named as a new idea in horror pictures with Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the starring roles. Karloff plays the role of a famous surgeon who performs a daring operation by transplanting part of the brain of a criminal into the brain of a quiet little college professor.

* * *

Action Theme of Features.

Zorina, the famous ballet fancer, who plays the lead in the dance-comedy "On Your Toes" at the Majestic theater, wore out more than 10 pairs of ballet slippers during rehearsals and production on this film. Eddie Albert, who plays the lead opposite Zorina, made a hit in the picture "Brother Rat," and does equally as well in this picture. As a second feature the film "The Roaring Twenties" is presented with Priscilla Lane and James Cagney in the cast.

* * *

Much Discussed Subject.

"Ecstasy," which was awarded the International prize at the film conference in Venice and created no little excitement when shown in Paris, is now showing at the Ritz theater. Hedy LaMarr plays the leading role in this production which has been the subject of much discussion. As a co-feature "Honeymoon Deferred" will be presented. Edmund Lowe and Margaret Lindsay are in the starring roles appearing as a detective and his bride whose honeymoon is interrupted by the suspected murder of Lowe's wealthy employer.

Expense Saves World Ravages Of Gas Warfare

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Because belligerents' money will buy more death and destruction by investment in high explosives than in poisonous gases, the world has so far been spared from the ravages of chemical warfare, according to Dr Frank C. Whitmore, dean of the School of Chemistry and Physics at Pennsylvania State college.

Dr. Whitmore, a past president of the American Chemical society, declared that economy, rather than humanitarianism, is the real reason for the absence of dreaded poisonous gases, for explosives will kill more men and do more damage than chemicals

He ascribed the failure of Germany to initiate more intensive aerial combat to the "realization that Britain and France have enormous amounts of aviation fuel of higher octane rating"

"Higher octane rating fuel," he said, "enables the planes employing it to fly at higher altitude and altitude is naturally an advantage in aerial warfare."

JACKSON'S DECANTERS

Mansfield, 16 Other Ohio Cities In Competition for Ohio Safety Award

City Off to Good Start With No Fatalities So Far This Year.

Mansfield will compete with 16 other Ohio cities in its population classification this year for the state highway department's safety award for reducing traffic accidents from last year.

The city is off to a good start this year, escaping without a traffic fatality so far. Last year at this time four persons had been killed in the city.

Mayors of cities enrolled in the safety campaign, including Mayor William J. Locke of Mansfield, will receive certificates of enrollment signed by Gov. John W. Bricker, State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler, and Robert N. Gorman, president of the Ohio State Safety council.

Awards will be made for percentage of reduction in accidents and fatalities from last year, measures to promote safety, and work among school pupils in the interests of safety.

State Highway Director Beightler said the objective of the contest is to "stimulate public interest in control of traffic accidents to reduce the staggering loss of life every year and the property loss resulting from the accidents."

Wrecked House Yields $1,000 in Gold Currency.

TULARE, Cal. —(U.P.)— Tulare old-timers speculated if the $1,000 in gold coins discovered in a razed Oakland house by George W. Leggett, Oakland Negro, were cached by John Frederick, former Tulare railway conductor, who built the house in 1885.

Legget has retained an attorney to protect his interest. He found the gold coin cache in the attic of the house which was being demolished in preparation for a $3,000,000 low rental project of the Oakland housing authority.

Dr. C. J. Frederick, Oakland dentist and son of the house builder, said he believed the money legitimately belonged to the Federal government. He said he did not want it for himself.

Last Link of Dutch Defense Taken By Nazis

With the capture of the great Moerdjik bridge, pictured above, the German armies completed their task of cutting Holland in two from the German border to the sea. The Moerdjik bridge, the longest bridge in Europe, spans the Hollandsh Diep not far from Rotterdam. Shortly after the capture of this bridge, the main Dutch force gave up the fight.

More Concern Over Europe's War

THE TURN taken in the European war within the past few days has brought a feeling of concern and realization of danger to many Americans who had previously been inclined to assume a disattached attitude toward that fast-spreading conflict.

When the war started there was belief among a majority of Americans, including those in high places in government, that Allied victory was assured.

Events in Norway, quickly followed by the plunge of Nazi forces into Holland and Belgium and the terrifying advances thus far made, have tended to shake that confidence and to cause more serious consideration of the possible consequences, to Europe and to the entire world, in the event of defeat of Great Britain and France.

While the attitude of Italy, in the matter of later participation, has not yet been made clear, anti-Allied demonstrations in that country have been disquieting and the axis agreements between Hitler and Mussolini do not encourage belief that Italy will at any time be helpful to the Allied cause.

Nor does the record in Poland and Finland disclose any likelihood that Russia is other than sympathetic with Nazi Germany's aggressive moves against small nations which had attempted to maintain neutrality and now face annihilation in the event of Allied defeat.

The seriousness with which the present situation has come to be regarded in the United States is indicated by the moves toward an increase in defensive armament that are being made in Washington, and a growing sentiment that this country, and the entire Western Hemisphere must be prepared to cope with such an onslaught as was visited upon Norway and is this week devastating Holland and Belgium and extending into France.

While there is still a question as to the final outcome of what looms as the greatest battle of the world's history, the startling progress thus far made by Hitler's mechanized warfare gives an idea of what other countries must be prepared to meet, in the event that superior force is to finally determine the issue between dictatorships and democracies.

Few Surprises in Primary Results

FAIR WEATHER and numerous contests on party tickets were effective in bringing out an even larger total vote than had been anticipated in yesterday's primaries, although choice of nominees was made by a minority of qualified voters in each of the parties.

Outcome in a majority of the county contests was much along lines predicted by experienced observers during final days of the pre-primary campaign and party leaders on both sides appear well satisfied with the nominees who will be presented for final selection in November.

Most discussed subject in connection with the primary is the come-back of former Governor Martin L. Davey into the state political picture as an easy winner of the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over former Governor George White as his nearest contender in a field of seven candidates.

With the Republican and Democratic national conventions coming along in June and July, and lively state, district and county campaigns in prospect for the summer and early fall, the next few months give promise of being marked by even more political activity than is customary in a "presidential year," in spite of present concentration of interest on the war in Europe.

Outmoded War Planes

MAJOR GENERAL H. H. ARNOLD, chief of the army air corps, presumably knows what he is talking about when he pronounces all our military planes in the United States now "obsolete according to European war standards."

That doesn't mean they have to be scrapped right away. Our army and navy doubtless have thousands of planes that will be useful for some time yet. But if we have any expectation or fear of getting into a war with any of the major powers in the near future, obviously the present planes must be replaced as rapidly as possible with air equipment of the most modern type, as regards power, speed, size and equipment.

In this respect, as in other matters of war preparation, the grim struggle across the Atlantic is an object lesson and a training school. Air forces grow more important day by day, and may soon dominate warfare on land, if not at sea.

Our government is in good position to keep up with the latest developments in this field, because our airplane industry is building war planes for the Allies. But we are not yet able to fill Allied orders as rapidly as they are needed abroad.

Obviously there must be a great expansion of this industry to enable the United States, while providing fighting and scouting planes for the democratic powers, to build up a modern air force for ourselves.

Year Without a Southern Lynching

FOR the first time in 118 years, twelve months have elapsed without a single lynching in the South. According to the Association of Southern Women for Prevention of Lynchings, one reason for the remarkable record is that fewer mobs have formed. In March and April of this year not a single mob formed, although five major crimes were committed. In the whole 12-month period only 18 mobs formed as against 42 in the preceding 12 months.

Lynching has not been a southern problem only. Except for the six New England states, there have been lynchings in every state. Delaware and New Jersey have had only one each, New York only two. More than one-third of the persons lynched in the United States between 1882 and 1938 were white. Of the seven lynchings in 1938 only one victim was in the hands of the law when killed. During that year officers of the law prevented lynchings in 42 cases.

The record has been steadily improving, and the much-criticized South leads the way in fighting the evil.

Beneficial May Showers

ON RECENT May days beneficial showers have been falling from Ohio to Colorado. They have delayed farm work a little in some of the middle states, but few farmers complained, for the rain has been soaking in to soil which has had too little moisture in recent years.

Some of the hardships caused by drouth and by agricultural blunders have been corrected by conservation work and application of sound farming methods. But without the rain, such efforts would be in vain.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Any writer of any consequence can get an interview any time with any candidate for almost any political office—and you can bet anything you want that any candidate with common sense is going to do his best to give any writer only that impression and material which will reflect greatest credit to him, the candidate.

That's why it's fun, sometimes, to do a little figurative keyhole peeping and see what traits a candidate will disclose when he's off-guard.

That's why, caught in a corner of an inner sanctum of Senator Bob Taft's presidential campaign headquarters, surrounded only by Taft friends and workers, I kept my mouth shut when the Senator himself made his appearance.

That's how I'm able to pass along a five-minute profile of a presidential candidate with his hair (what there is of it) down.

In those five unguarded minutes he did three things:

1. Asked advice, weighed the source, and didn't take it.

2. Kicked the props out from under the pardonable enthusiasm of one of his lieutenants.

3. Gave his press department boys a headache by correcting their count on some unhatched chickens, and then tried to ease their pain by dictating a conservatively optimistic release on what he thinks of his prospects at the Republican convention, as of the present date.

(Whether the PD boys are sending this release around or consider it too mild a claim for publication I haven't heard yet.)

* * *

He Pares 'Em Down.

I WAS chatting with a campaign worker who had just returned from a middle western survey.

"Now you take Nebraska," he said, "Dewey won the preferential primary (Taft wasn't in it) but dope is that 10 of 14 delegates are just waiting to switch to Taft."

Just then the big, baldish, bespectacled son of a President who wants to walk in his father's footsteps entered the room. He overheard the remark.

"Now wait a minute. That isn't fair," Taft said. "You can't say that for sure. Let's stick to the facts. That was just somebody's guess. I'm doubting that I break into that delegation until I see it happen."

The lieutenant grinned sheepishly and didn't argue.

Taft writes his own speeches and really sweats over them. He read a few paragraphs from one he had been wrestling with.

The assemblage enthused. "That's fine! Swell! Great, Chief!"

The Senator looked over the crowd of "yessers" and smiled. "Well," he said slowly, "I still don't think it says exactly what I mean. I'd better work on it a while longer."

One of the workers asked the boss to run over some estimates of Taft strength that were being prepared for a press release. In almost every instance Taft revised the list downward. The worker's face lengthened at every check of the pencil.

"Understand," said Taft, "we are making no outright claims. Here, for instance, we have two instructed delegates in North Carolina. The sentiment isn't unfavorable in some other states. That's all."

* * *

He Peps 'Em Up.

BEFORE long, the press department gang was glooming and said so. Taft laughed. "All right," he said. "Here's an authorized statement:

"1. Senator Taft will have more votes on the first ballot than any other candidate.

"2. Senator Taft will have delegate strength in practically every state.

"3. Senator Taft is the second choice of more delegates than any other candidate."

The Senator turned, went into his private office, closed the door.

One of his press representatives shook his head, a little sadly. "He thinks that's bragging."

I wouldn't know.

STRONG MAN OF EUROPE!

Listen, World!

I'm Sick of Shins!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHOOPS for Mister Ickes! He has refused—and definitely—to allow a flock of Bathing Beauties to pose promiscuously all over Uncle Sam's Boulder Dam. There should be, opines the indignant Secretary, a limit to leg shows. And a Federal Project is it.

For which blast may Secretary Ickes be forever blest! At last there's one place in this vast land where you can sit down and get an eyeful of the horizon without having to include Rosabelle's slightly sprung knee-caps and underdone thighs.

Mind you—I've nothing against thighs, shins and ankles—per se. And I'm 100 per cent for the modern kid's sketchy sport clothes and bare skin cult. When I think of the four starched petticoats I lugged around at seventeen, the three-inch "chokers," long union suits, ridged stockings and high shoes — (remember the hump above your shoe, Mame, where your underwear folded over?) I could scream from sheer envy.

What's more, I stoutly maintain that the relationship between these laughing, larking youngsters of today, racing around in their shorts and one-piece bathing suits, is immeasurably healthier than the smirking, snickering secrecy of Victorian days. So the Sun Tan Brigade gets my vote every time. But deliver me from these ten thousand teetering, tittering Beauty Prize Winners who loop their limbs up over every beach and billboard, magazine cover and broadwalk!

In the first place, you can't tell me they're really human—not with a waistline hung about six inches below their tonsils and from there on All Shin. No normal female ever had that much leg. Most of them look like a cross between a Praying Mantis and a String Bean. Neither animal, vegetable or mineral.

Maybe I'm fussy—but, after all, girls had shapes even in 1890. And calves — though you didn't mention them—were supposed to be an essential adjunct to the human tibia. But I defy you to dect anything even remotely resembling a calf in this stem-pipe parade.

Every time I see a line of them doing their stuff I have a fiendish impulse. Remember the picket fences we had as kids, Bill? And how we'd race along with a stick going clickety-clack-clickety-clack from picket to picket? Well, darned if I don't want to do the same with these miles 'n' miles of prize-winning shanks.

It isn't their lack of lard, however, that irks me most with these Lanky Lils, but their complete dearth of variety. Doesn't matter who they are or where they hail from—when you've seen one of them, you've seen them all. They all totter on three-inch heels. They all smirk through identical lip rouge. They all have two Gaits and two only—a Canter or a Shuffle. And they all have that Come-on Stare. But what have you got when you get there?

In short, as you may have gathered, I'M SICK OF PRIZE CONTEST SHINS. But I'm not blaming Miss San Francisco or Los Angeles, Miss Chicago, St. Louis, New York or Miami for entering 'em. We, the Great American People, invented this outdoor sport.

Coffee's Effect As a Stimulant.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE controversy as to whether coffee is beneficial or harmful cannot be settled dogmatically. The active ingredient of coffee, caffeine, is a drug which is used in medicine for definite purposes. It is a heart stimulant. It is useful in shock and the depression following surgical operations.

Its fundamental action is probably to increase the amount of blood put out by the heart, and it is this increased blood flow alone which, going through the brain, induces mental stimulation. Caffeine does not harm the kidneys, although it is often thought by those who do not study carefully that the increased output of urine is harmful. The increased output of urine is due simply to the increase of blood flow through the kidneys. On the heart muscle caffeine has a very beneficial action because it increases the nutrition of the heart muscle. For this reason it should be advocated as a regular beverage in moderate quantities for middle-aged people.

Muscular Response Measured.

Muscular response to coffee has been measured. It was found in normal young men, whose reaction to a given stimulus was measured beforehand, that after drinking coffee their reactions were two to six per cent more rapid.

Naturally for any drug, it must be said that if used immoderately, the effect is bad. Just what constitutes immoderate intake is a question of temperament. People are not all made alike. Some have stable nervous systems; some are of the thick-skinned variety; others are temperamental, unstable, with nerves set on a hair trigger. For the last class, coffee has no proper use.

It may be put down as axiomatic that if coffee makes you nervous it is not good for you.

Coffee should certainly not be given to children below the age of 10 years and I would even say 15 years. They do not need the stimulation. Their hearts and brains are young and active and coffee would induce a false need for stimulation.

In High Blood Pressure.

High blood pressure is no contra-indication of coffee, according to Doctor Stuhlz. He believes that patients with high blood pressure should be allowed coffee in the morning if they are used to it, although he forbids its use in the afternoon or evening.

Occasionally one finds a person with an irritable heart who gets palpitation from the use of coffee. Here, again, common sense would contra-indicate its use.

Coffee can be decaffeinized. The decaffeinized coffee contains a very small percentage of of caffeine, so small as to be negligible. For people who are habituated to the taste and smell of a cup of coffee, these beverages can be recommended.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The perilous course a manuscript must travel from author to press before it is accepted and published is much like that of a ship in the mine zones. It has to negotiate a Skaggerak of shark-like readers who approach their task in the coldly unemotional mood of mine-layers. Their job is to cut down anything that does not give reasonably safe guarantees to investments. Publishing houses have to be careful. If they guess wrong, they lose money. This is why all manuscripts are analyzed carefully by professional readers, whose opinions are then sent in typewritten form to the publisher. These little typewritten sheets are confidential, but I have managed to get a number of these from Doubleday-Doran, one of the big N. Y. publishing houses, and I am going to pass one or more of them along to you.

This one concerns a book on personality and salesmanship. Its title and the name of its author are withheld for reasons which, after you read this report, will be obvious. The report:

* * *

I SUPPOSE that any book so fantastically laid out, a sort of Kitten on The Keys, typographically speaking, would tend to nauseate any reader. But judging it coldly on its merits, I am forced to say that this is by all odds the—damdest book I ever saw. It is about a man who would back you into a corner, get a clutch on a button of your coat, and sell you insurance you didn't need, a cruise you didn't want to take, and an interest in Brooklyn Bridge—not because of his forceful personality but merely to get away from him. This is revolting in a way I didn't think possible. Pulling out all stops, (the author) jumps in and simply screams his way through this book. Making use of the typographical layout of an auction bill, he accents, underscores, italicizes, reiterates, and repeats until you just don't care anymore. His (various 'points,) his great logic, his "think and grow rich" formulas are so loudly voiced that they become disappearing horizons and no serious reader dares approach them. This book needs a muffler. Thurber would have a Field day with it.

"Just to make sure that the world hasn't gone nuts, I got up a copy of Dale Carnegie's book and read parts of it to see whether this is the sort of stuff he's getting rich on. It isn't Carnegie, compared to this man, is fascinating. He writes English without using banner heads, what he says has some slight quality of subtlety, and his illustrations are good, fresh, drawn from current life, and though they have the same old morals tacked on they're added with some degree of skill. . . . This is pulp fiction beside a Five Foot Shelf, and I don't think we want our imprint on it." Signed, "K."

* * *

WELL, this ship was mined, torpedoed, and sunk. But that's the way it goes. If the reader had given a favorable report, the book would have passed along to other readers for verification. Publishers don't take many chances. They have a good idea what they can use and what they can't. When you see a house making very many bad guesses in a row, there is a house that isn't long for this world. They can't afford to guess wrong many times. I always have been interested in the inner workings of a publishing house, especially as regards the selection of manuscripts, and I thought you might like to read a report like this, too.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Behind the president's speech to the American Scientific Conference was a very genuine worry over the protection of the Western hemisphere.

The president threw aside a speech which had been prepared for several days before, and during the tense hours just after Holland and Belgium were invaded he dictated a new draft which emphasized the importance of Pan-American unity, plus force, to protect these continents. He even raised the question whether the American nations could stand idly by while dictators conquer the rest of the world.

Behind all this were some very careful studies which the president and his naval and military strategists have been making of Western hemisphere defense.

It may sound like scare headlines, but it is no exaggeration to say that to the strategists who take out paper and pencil to figure on protecting the U. S. A., Nazi activities in Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium have meant the very definite scrapping (for the first time in our 164-year history) of George Washington's Farewell Address on American isolation.

Here is how the strategists figure it out. The keystone of American defense has been:

1. A big navy in the Pacific.

2. Friendship with Great Britain, which rules the waves of the Atlantic.

Assuming that the British fleet should disappear from the Atlantic, the United States would then have to maintain two fleets—one for the Pacific and one for the Atlantic. And it would take at least four years to build a new fleet for the Atlantic.

* * *

Red Herring.

ONE of the weapons of modern war is the red herring. Honor has departed from warfare. The Nazis used subterfuge to get into Norway. German aviators dressed in Dutch uniforms to land in Holland. Italy maneuvered in the Mediterranean to keep the British from sending too many ships to Scandinavia. Mussolini was the red herring.

Therefore, it is not unreasonable to figure that if Germany ever wanted to land troops in the western hemisphere, Japan would be the red herring, would send her fleet toward Hawaii. Probably she would not land in Hawaii, but merely maneuver enough to keep the U. S. fleet in the Pacific, prevent it from protecting the Atlantic coast.

At present only four cruisers, plus one small airplane carrier and some decrepit destroyers, guard the Atlantic. Before the Pacific fleet could return through the Panama to the Atlantic, Germany could land all the troops she wanted in Trinidad, or Puerto Rico, or the northern tip of South America.

Military minds calculate that German troops even could be landed in Newfoundland, which has, at Botwood, one of the best airports in the world. And from Botwood, they could land in Maine about as fast as U. S. forces could concentrate against them.

Germany, however, is not likely to bother with New England. Far wealthier, far more important are the oil fields of Venezuela, the tropical plantations of Brazil, the wheat fields of Argentina. Here there are large groups of German and Italian settlers. And here, rather than in the more crowded areas of Europe, are the real outlets for excess German population.

Important fact: The Low Countries now invaded by Hitler are among the most densely populated in the world, have no raw materials. Outside of Africa, the wealthiest raw material area in the world, also the least populated, lies under the Monroe Doctrine.

Roosevelt Talks!!

THE four Iowa congressional leaders who called on the president the other day heard something which left their mouths agape. For Roosevelt told them categorically that he was not a candidate for re-election.

While they were still gasping, he delivered another stunner:—that he had never seriously entertained the idea of running again.

The four callers — Senators Herring and Gillette, Representatives Jacobsen and Harrington—had arrived to discuss a proposal that Roosevelt endorse a "harmony" ticket similar to the one patched up in Texas. The plan was engineered by Gillette to bloc an Iowa third-term delegation.

Roosevelt was non-committal, taking the position that it was up to the Iowa leaders. But then, speaking with a frankness he has seldom displayed, he explained that his silence on the third term was dictated by international considerations.

Had he stated his intentions a year ago, Roosevelt declared, it would have greatly impaired the government's position in the desperate efforts to preserve peace. With FDR definitely out of the picture and a battle royal raging for the nomination, foreign powers would have paid little attention to the U. S. because of uncertainty over its policy under the new administration.

"There would have been confusion and chaos," the president said, in effect. "We would have approached the election as a house divided instead of a harmonious whole."

Roosevelt also pointed out that by his remaining silent the field of possible successors had been confined to experienced and known leaders, to the exclusion of "overnight sensations." He recalled how Calvin Coolidge, little known governor of Massachusetts, overnight became a national figure by claiming he quelled the Boston police strike.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Two Kinds.

There are two kinds of people: those
Who make the start and those
Who wait for this, the followers
Which will the days disclose

You are? Have you the will to go
Where your high visions lead?
Or if no valiant soul appears,
Will you let hope recede?

Take hold and make the start, be one
Of those who have no fear.
Lead on, world lays its homage down
Before the pioneer.

A Baby Bat

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHEN I hunted mushrooms along the orchard slope, I saw something that appeared like a dark leaf wrapped about an object. It hung from a slender dogwood branch, by what appeared to be a woody stem. For an instant I passed it by to look more closely at some painted cuplike moss. But that slender package done up so neatly, intrigued me and I went back to look at it closer.

Down at the lower tip, I saw the movement of two tiny nostrils, then two small thin ears, eyes, and dark, very dark, gray fur. What had seemed a stem became a leg and I noticed how firmly the claws were fastened about the branch. The east wind rocked the body back and forth but the leg bore its burden without difficulty. I cupped my hands about the sleeping bat and captured it. It struggled like a captive bird and squeaked like a mouse.

When the prisoner had become accustomed to this little hand-made prison, and the struggles and squeaks grew less, I ventured to widen the space between my hands, ever so little and opened a small vent below by moving one finger out, so that I might have light. I peeped in and as the bat crawled close to the rift between my thumbs, I saw a baby bat slinging with claws and mouth to its mother's breast. The first baby bat I had ever looked upon—and it was the blessed image of the adult!

I was taught as a boy that a bat was vicious, its bite poisonous its fur teeming with vermin. But—this one had as soft, clean and silky a coat as a flying squirrel, and the tiny one was as neat as though its mother had washed it for this occasion.

I opened my thumbs a little wider to get a better look and in less than the twinkling of an eye, the little prisoner was gone and flew uncertainly through a maze of branches, where I could not follow.

Bats are useful creatures. Like shrews, night hawks and whippoorwills, they work by night and catch insects. A bat's chief diet is moths and mosquitoes. By day, they haunt church steeples, crevices in buildings, holes in rocks and trees. Their blood is as warm as that of a bird, during the summer season. They hibernate in winter and breathing seems to almost cease. They are small creatures, never more than six inches long, with a great wing spread. They will not light upon a human, for in their nose and wingtips are knots of nerves that instinctively protect them from collision.

House Committee Reports $975,650,000 Relief Bill

EIGHT MONTHS FOR SPENDING MONEY OK'ED

Abuses in Administration of WPA Charged; Theatrical Project Omitted.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A $975,650,000 WPA appropriation, spendable in eight months if necessary, was recommended today by the house appropriations committee which reported a lessening of "abuses" in relief administration.

The WPA Appropriation, which the committee approved as President Roosevelt had requested it, was part of a $1,111,754,819 emergency relief supply bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The committee sent the bill to the house floor.

At the same time it reported to the house that the administration of relief heretofore had been marred by abuses including improvement of private property at public expense, over-manned projects, "padded sponsors' contributions," and inadequate supervision and operation of projects on which a high percentage of non-relief labor was required.

The $975,650,000 WPA appropriation was compared with a $1,477,000,000 relief outlay for the full 12 months of the current year. The committee said the proposed sum would provide employment for an average of 1,330,000 persons if used over a 12 months period or 1,950,000 on an eight months basis.

Permission to use the money in eight months, if necessary, was recommended, the committee said, on President Roosevelt's request that this be done and in the light of reports showing a decline in industrial activities since January, when the chief executive made his original request for $975,650,000 for 12 months.

House leaders arranged to take up the big relief measure today after completing work on the farm appropriation.

In addition to WPA funds, the measure carried, as recommended by the appropriation committee, $115,000,000 for rural rehabilitation work of the agriculture department, a cut of $8,000,000 under Mr. Roosevelt's request.

The measure represented a $543,075,084 reduction when compared with corresponding appropriations for the current fiscal year, and a cut of $14,300,084 below the president's recommendations for the next year.

The committee turned down the administration's request for revival of the federal theater project and generally recommended continuation of restrictions written into the 1939 WPA appropriation law.

These include the requirement that all persons on WPA for 18 months must be furloughed for 30 days. Harrington asked for a 15-day furlough period, but that was turned down.

The house decision to take up the relief bill shifted congressional action from the senate, which voted 46 to 34 yesterday to uphold President Roosevelt's transfer of the civil aeronautics authority to the commerce department.

Housewife Says $300 Taken: Start Hunt for Youth.

Police today were searching for a 25-year-old colored youth suspected of the theft of $300 from a woman who had hired him to assist her in her spring housecleaning.

Mrs. Tony Mollica, 336 West Sixth street, called police yesterday afternoon after the youth had left the house on the pretense of going to purchase a package of cigarets.

She told officers that when he failed to return immediately, she discovered that the money was missing. She had placed it in a buffet drawer after paying an insurance agent, she said.

Mrs. Mollica said she had hired the young man two days ago to help her with house cleaning. She told police he was working in the kitchen when she placed the money in the buffet.

CANADA BANS COMMUNISTS

Action Follows Conviction of Newspaperman for Passing Pamphlets.

OTTAWA, Ont.—(U.P.)—The Ontario supreme court outlawed the Communist party in Canada today and sentenced three men convicted of distributing anti-war pamphlets to prison terms of 2½ to three years and fines from $1,000 to $2,000.

Justice Edgar Chevrier, in passing sentence, granted the prosecution's request that the Communist party be outlawed in all the provinces. The request was based upon defense of Canada regulations providing that if an officer of any group is found guilty of violations, the entire organization may be declared illegal.

The prosecution charged that one defendant, Harry Binder, a newspaperman, was an official of the Communist party. He was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and fined $2,000. His brother Louis, a soldier, and Roy Saunders, a civil servant, were given sentences of 2½ years and fined $1,000 each.

Wilhelm was still at Doorn and was expected to remain there, the informant said.

BALKAN FEARS AGAIN AROUSED

Slovakia Mobilized; Hungary Closes Border and Keeps Eye on Italy.

BUDAPEST —(U.P.)— The German protectorate of Slovakia has ordered mobilization which "must" be completed today and Hungary has closed her Slovakian frontier, the controled Hungarian press reported today.

Press reports said the frontier was closed Saturday, that Slovakian Reservists between the ages of 23 and 42 had been ordered to their regiments and to the towns of Corpona and Gekko and that a Slovakian anti-Hungarian meeting had been scheduled but was postponed until May 19.

Hungary is partially mobilized. These developments and increasing Italian militancy and the swift German successes in the Netherlands and Belgium deepened the gloom spreading through the Balkans.

It was believed here that Italy's entry into the war on the German side may be only a question of days if the Allies fail to stem the German advance through the lowlands.

War in the Balkans was believed inevitable if Italy joins Germany.

It was taken for granted here that the Allied fleet would immediately move into the Adriatic and the Agean seas and the Sea of Marmara, shutting off Balkan sea transportation.

Names at Head of Ballots Just an Election 'Headache'

Richland county voters, like thousands of others in Ohio, probably wondered at yesterday's primary what all of those names were doing in the left-hand column of their ballots under the names of Senator Robert A. Taft and Charles Sawyer.

Election officials, who saw no reason for having the names there, didn't like the idea of having to count them either, so they left them until today after all the other candidates' names were tabulated.

While most of the voters placed an "x" before the name of Taft or Sawyer, they neglected to mark the long list of candidates for delegates and alternates to the national conventions this summer, so their votes actually meant nothing.

Since none of the delegates and alternates had opposition, they probably will go to the conventions anyway, election board officials pointed out.

The names of Senator Taft and Sawyer on the ballots showed that the delegates are pledged to them as "favorite sons" on the first ballot at the convention, but after that they may shift their support to any other candidate who may have a better chance for nomination. Sawyer's delegates will support President Roosevelt if he wants a third term.

SENATOR MADE RACE WITHOUT ORGANIZATION

Neely Takes Commanding Lead in Democratic Contest For Governorship.

(By Associated Press)

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—U. S. Sen. Rush D. Holt, seeking renomination, trailed far behind two opponents today in the West Virginia Democratic primary.

Holt, now 35, youngest man ever to take a seat in the senate, split with his supporters after his election in 1934 and was making the race without any particular organization.

Meanwhile, Sen. M. M. Neely, seeking the nomination for governor with CIO support, jumped into a commanding lead over Democratic State Chairman R. Carl Andrews, presaging victory over the Democratic faction which has controlled the state government the past eight years.

His running mate, Judge Harley M. Kilgore, moved slowly ahead of former Gov. H. G. Kump, supported by the state administration for the senatorial nomination. Holt was third in the race.

Neely and Kilgore headed a list of aspirants opposed to the slate supported by Gov. Homer A. Holt.

Although returns were far from complete, the two Democratic congressmen who had primary opposition appeared to be safe for renomination.

Jennings Randolph in the second district was far ahead of former State Sen. Lee Sandridge. In the fourth district George W. Johnson was an apparent winner over W. T. Lovins of Huntington.

Sharing interest with the returns from the Democratic factional feud was a skyrocketing vote for 37-year-old State Senator Thomas B. Sweeney, who stood in front of three veterans for the Republican nomination for the U. S. senate.

The Republican gubernatorial nomination appeared to be a sure thing for Mayor D. Boone Dawson of Charleston over Judge Lewis H. Miller of Ripley.

Latest returns showed:

For senator—Democrats 1,040 precincts of 2,379. Kilgore 54,468, Kump 48, 340, Holt 37,352.

Republican—1002 precincts out of 2,379: Sweeney 32,499, Bachmann 21, 921, Rogers 14,160, Morgan 13,896.

For governor—Democrats, 1185 of 2,379 precincts: Neely 90,930, Andrews 67,398.

Republican — 1057 precincts: Dawson 51,635, Miller 31,992.

DAVEY REACHES HALFWAY MARK IN HIS ATTEMPTED COMEBACK

COLUMBUS—Martin L. Davey, the Kent tree surgeon with a great big grin and colorful neckties, is halfway up the comeback tree.

Crushing the opposition of veteran Ohio party leaders, he spread-eagled six other candidates in yesterday's primary to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in his bid for a third term.

He will oppose in the Nov. 5 election Republican Gov. John W. Bricker, against whom Davey leveled much of his heavy primary campaign fire. Bricker was renominated without opposition.

It will be a second Davey-Bricker fight. Four years ago Davey licked him and won a second term as governor. Two years ago Davey's bid for renomination was repulsed by Charles Sawyer, who then fell before Bricker in the election.

Davey's departure from office in January, 1939, was by no means the end of his political activity. He said recently that he stayed in politics to "keep my pitching arm in good shape." His campaign included a heavy flow of circulars to voters and a suit in the Ohio supreme court accused him of spending more that $5,000 for postage.

At 55, Davey is one of the most colorful men in Ohio politics. He sparred frequently with the New Deal administration—once he threatened jail for Harry Hopkins if the WPA administrator entered Ohio; he drew the ire of Ohio State university with his open assertion that its football team was carried on the state pay roll. Charges of graft and dealings in "hot mix" and "truckless trucking" were hurled and a special senate committee examined his administration in his last year of office.

Even after he lost in his bid for renomination, Davey continued to make headlines. He refused to support Sawyer in the election, foes accused him of making a patronage "deal" with Bricker, and a graft hearing witness sued him for libel.

Top-notch Democratic leaders showered protests against Davey's new race for a third term.

This was Davey's fourth successful bid for nomination. He won in 1928 but was defeated in the election by Myers Y. Cooper. He gained the governorship in 1934 and 1936.

Lutz Gets Congress Nomination; Wagner, Catlett Win

17TH DISTRICT DEMS SELECT RICHLAND MAN

Rogers, Jameson to Oppose Brown, Hurley for Seats In Ohio Senate.

When the November election rolls around, Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington, Democratic county representative to the state legislature, will oppose J. Harry McGregor of West LaFayette, Republican, in the contest for congressman of the 17th Ohio district which includes Richland county.

Lutz, now serving his third term in the general assembly defeated Samuel A. Anderson of Newark, former Licking county representative by a vote of 10,263 to 9,539 in yesterday's primaries. The unofficial returns included tabluations from all but two of the precincts in the six-county district.

McGregor, unopposed for the Republican nomination, was elected at a special election in February to succeed the late William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown Democrat.

P. H. Rogers of Grafton and Joseph Jameson of Lorain, lead the polling in the 27-29th state senatorial district for nomination on the Republican ticket.

They will oppose Maurice C. Brown and William F. Hurley, both of Lorain, who won the Democratic nomination.

Rogers, incumbent, polled 15,539 votes and Jameson, former Lorain postmaster, rolled up a total of 9,304 votes. Wallace W. Barnhill of Ashland, received 9,056 votes in the four-county district.

Former Lorain councilman, Brown polled 8,302 votes while Hurley, former senator from the district, turned in 7,062. Jack H. Garver, Lorain, had 2,535 and Wilson A. Little had 4,006 votes on the Republican ticket.

Eyed with no little local interest were the party nominations for Richland county representa- which resulted with two newcomers in politics, both Mansfield attorneys, leading their respective tickets over veterans in the field.

Leslie K. Wagner won the Democratic nomination. His Republican opponent at the November election, J. H. Catlett, beat out two other candidates on the G. O. P. side.

Wagner with a vote of 2,535 defeated D. W. Cook, his nearest rival, by more than 1,200 votes. Cook received 1,279. P. G. Kirchbaum polled 676 and Harvey Tucker 967.

Catlett turned in a total of 2,518 votes against 1,578 for H. H. Maxwell and 971 for C. R. Wolford.

COUNCIL GETS 'PROBLEM CHILD'

West Fourth Paving Tangle Expected to Be Cleared at Session Thursday.

George C. Kyle told the group there was a likelihood that certain property owners on West Fourth street would bring an injunction seeking to restrain the city from putting down a paving combination of brick and concrete.

Murray D. Shaffer, division highway engineer, pointed out that brick and concrete had been definitely decided on by council last winter, that the entire project had been set up and approved on that premise and that to change it now meant scrapping the present project, starting over again with both WPA and state approval to be obtained. It meant, he said, a delay of possibly 60 days before the project could get under way.

Kyle also questioned an item of $10,000 for engineering on the project. Shaffer said that the usual engineering cost of a project was 10 per cent of the total and that in this instance the charge was a little more than 5 per cent of the $190,000 project.

The paving project is set up at $190,000, with WPA supplying $76,000 in labor, the city's share not to exceed $38,000 and the state's portion running approximately $66,000.

The project was delayed last week when Councilman Fred Miller asked council to adopt a resolution providing the $38,000. Miller said he believed that the contract had been changed to include WPA labor which should mean a saving to the city. Shaffer said yesterday that the WPA labor had been figured on from the beginning and was in the original set up.

The suggestion of resurfacing the street instead of paving was rejected by councilmen present. It was pointed out that the concrete base of the street is shattered and a resurfacing job with hot-mix asphalt would be only a temporary improvement.

Shaffer told the group that if the work is delayed so that it is not completed by winter, it would have to go over for another year as no work would be done during the winter. He said that while the state is willing to cooperate in every way possible and willing to put down any kind of pavement the city wants, the highway de-

SIVERLING, KICK WIN ASHLAND PRIMARY RACES

Prosecutor Nominated Again, Hammond Chosen to Run for New Term as Sheriff.

ASHLAND — With no contest for seven of the nominations on the Republican ballot in Ashland county, interest in yesterday's primary voting here reflected itself most sharply in two Democratic races.

Hotly contested until the final precincts were in, the Democratic nomination for prosecuting attorney went to William Siverling, incumbent, with 2052 votes. His opponent, R. W. Lett, polled 1493.

In the race for county treasurer, Karl K. Kick completely snowed under H. O. Faber by a vote of 2930 to 326. Kick collected the highest total vote for one candidate in the county. Faber, who resigned approximately a year ago, ran on a "vindication" platform. His opponent was the only candidate for the treasurer's unexpired term.

Three Democratic incumbents were re-nominated. Charles A. McBride, clerk of courts, defeated Charles F. Reeb, 1903 to 1425; L. Dale Hammond, sheriff, won over Bryan Lee and W. C. Rodgers, 2114-820-550; and L. G. Shenberger, county engineers, chalked up a 2025-1539 victory over L. S. MacDowell.

Nominated for Democratic candidates for county commissioner were former Sheriff H. F. Wallett (2192) and Clayton I. Harmon (1656). Others in the contest were Walter G. Workman (1180) and Clarence R. Keener (1085).

Joseph Bonfiglio with 1104 votes ran second to J. P. Hunter, the Democratic nominee for state representative, who polled 2235. Ralph H. Maffet, unopposed for county recorder, tallied 2890, the second highest individual total.

In the two contests on the Republican ticket J. F. Church, state representative, defeated James E. Ringler, 1694 to 644; and Don Sprang and A. L. Daniels, with 1677 and 1151 votes respectively, received the nomination for county commissioner. Charles Mowery, third man in the commissioner race, polled 1015.

There was no candidate for prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket as there were none for probate judge or coroner on the Democratic ballot.

Republicans nominated without contest were Stanton H. Boffenmyer, for probate judge (2063); Ray E. Kiplinger, for clerk of courts (1970); Harry R. Welch, for sheriff (2148); Arthur C. Dorland, for recorder (1939); Ray Koontz, for treasurer, full term, (2015); Edwin M. Kerr for engineer, (2012); and George M. Emery, for coroner (2218).

Ashland county Democrats gave Martin L. Davey an almost two-to-one preference over George White in the gubernatorial race. The vote was 2122-1152. For U. S. senator, Republicans gave Harold H. Burton 1237 votes and Dudley A. White 896.

TWO MOTORISTS LOSE LICENSES

Two traffic offenders who appeared in municipal court this morning on unsafe driving charges had their drivers licenses revoked and were given fines.

Jack E. Hahne, School road, was arrested by state highway patrolman after he allegedly had driven down Park avenue west at 70 miles an hour, passing other cars at high speed and weaving in and out of traffic. He pleaded guilty, was fined $10 and costs and had his driving rights suspended for 60 days.

Lloyd A. Westover, McPherson street, was arrested last night by state highway patrolmen for unsafe operation. He pleaded guilty before [illegible] was fined $5 and costs and [illegible] suspension of drivers license.

BURTON-WHITE RACE FEATURES OHIO PRIMARY

Davey Scores Easy Victory Over Seven Opponents in Comeback Test.

Heavy tickets slowed counting of returns in what was forecast as a record primary vote. Tabulations were not expected to be completed until late in the afternoon. A survey of incomplete returns indicated Republicans would outpoll Democrats, reversing the 1938 trend.

Voters selected national convention delegate slates of Democrats favorable to a third term nomination for President Roosevelt and of Republicans backing the presidential drive of Robert A. Taft, Ohio's junior senator. There was no opposition.

Burton's victory would be the second hard blow suffered by Schorr in a party senatorial fight in two years. Senator Taft bucked organization opposition to trim Judge Arthur Day by a decisive margin in 1938.

Republican candidates for secretary of state, auditor and supreme court judge endorsed by Schorr this year also were beaten.

Biggest surprise was the downfall of Secretary of State George M. Neffner, who sought to gain the nomination on a write-in ballot. He lost to Edward Hummel of Cincinnati, making his eighth try for the nomination. It was the first time such a write-in campaign was ever tried.

Shake-up Seen.

While Davey's victory undoubtedly presages a shake-up in the Democratic organization, Schorr was expected by political observers to weather the storm kicked up by Burton and independent Republicans who called Schorr a "blunderboss" and demanded his resignation.

Burton, center of frequent Cleveland relief crises since elected mayor on an independent ticket in 1935, was criticized by Schorr for blaming last winter's relief financing troubles on the Bricker administration.

Because of this reputed party disloyalty — which Burton denied—Schorr endorsed White, a newspaperman serving his second term in congress. Charles Wharton, Kenton merchant and third Republican senatorial aspirant, trailed far behind, although he made better than an average showing.

The McSweeney-Bigelow tilt was never in doubt. McSweeney, a three-term congressman and former state director of welfare grabbed the lead at the start and increased it steadily, mounting up nearly a two to one advantage.

Boosted Plan.

Bigelow, exponent of a liberalized pension system, entered the race primarily to obtain a sounding board for his plan, but failed to make an intensive campaign.

In the Democratic gubernatorial race, it also was Davey all the way, with the nomination conceded at midnight by his closest opponent, former Gov. George White. Former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy of Cleveland acknowledged defeat three hours later.

Other candidates were Herbert S. Duffy, former attorney general, Harold G. Mosier, former Congressman James T. Flynn and Frank Dye, attorneys and political newcomers.

Davey, elected governor in 1934 and 1936, was defeated for renomination in 1938 by Charles Sawyer, Ohio national committeeman. Davey was opposed this year by organization leaders, who criticized him for deserting Sawyer two years ago.

Republican organization-backed candidates who fell by the wayside were Chairman Harry W. Jewell of the pardon and parole commission, candidate for supreme court judge; Robert Bangham, candidate for state auditor; and Neffner.

Joseph T. Tracy, who held the auditorship 16 years until he was defeated four years ago, grabbed the nomination in a "walk-away" despite Chairman Schorr's plea that he be defeated. Ferguson, only Democrat holding a state elective office now, also was renominated.

COUNTY VOTERS GO ALONG WITH STATE'S TIDE

Richland Gives Burton Margin, Favors McSweeney for Dem Senate Nomination.

The majority of Richland county Democratic and Republican voters rode with the winners in yesterday's primary so far as contests on state tickets were concerned.

Republicans gave Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland 2,710 votes as compared to 1,872 for his opponent Dudley A. White of Norwalk. Charles E. Wharton, Kenton, garnered 316 votes.

Democrats followed the rest of the state in naming John McSweeney of Wooster, as their U. S. senatorial candidate at the fall election. McSweeney polled 3,247 in the county against 2,089 for Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati, sponsor of the $50-a-month pension plan last election.

Democrats also hopped on former Governor Martin L. Davey's band wagon as he won the gubernatorial nomination from six opponents, including Gov. George White of Cincinnati.

Davey got a total of 3,348 votes in the county, more than the combined totals of the other six candidates.

For the republican nomination for secretary of state, the Richland county G. O. P. members cast their lot with Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati, over Secretary of State George Neffner, New Vienna, out to succeed himself by the "write - in" method.

Democrats nominated John E. Sweeney, Cleveland, along with the majority of Ohio's 88 counties in a surprise victory. Sweeney defeated a seven-man field, including two prominent Democrats, Ray Allison, former state finance director, and William H. Kroeher, former state building and loan superintendent.

Likewise, Democrats went along in nominating Judge MacBride, Columbus attorney, to represent the party at the fall election for supreme court judge for the term beginning Jan. 2.

MacBride will be opposed in the election by Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, former attorney general, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination, and an incumbent, Judge Arthur H. Day, who announced he would run as an independent.

For the supreme court term beginning Jan. 1, the majority of county Republicans voted for Harry H. Jewell, Delaware, chairman of the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission who lost to Judge Clinton B. Boyd of Middletown, for the nomination.

Charles B. Zimmerman, Democratic candidate was unopposed in the primary.

For the court of appeals county Republicans nominated J. Locke Mason over Edward R. Sterling to oppose Judge C. C. Sherick, Democratic incumbent, in the November election.

UNOPPOSED IN CONGRESS RACE

Many Candidates Walked Into Nomination in Tuesday Ohio Primaries.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Candidates for congressmen were chosen in Ohio's 22 districts but most of the incumbents won renomination without contest.

Five districts had no contest on either ballot while in 10 others only one party chose between candidates. Eleven Republican and three Democratic incumbents were unopposed. Two Republicans and four Democrats faced primary opposition for renomination.

Rep. James G. Polk of Highland, sixth district Democrat, did not seek renomination while Rep. Dudley White, 13th district Republican, sought his party's senatorial designation.

Candidates nominated without opposition were, by districts and parties: (X denotes incumbent).

Republican: First, Charles H. Elston, Newtown (X); Second, William E. Hess, Cincinnati (X); Third, Harry N. Routzohn, Dayton (X); Fourth, Robert F. Jones, Lima (X); Fifth, Cliff Clevenger, Bryan (X); Seventh, Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester (X); 10th, Thomas A. Jenkins, Ironton (X); 12th, John M. Vorys, Columbus (X); 16th, Jim Seccombe, Canton (X); 17th, J. Harry McGregor, West Lafayette (X); 18th, Earl R. Lewis, St. Clairsville (X).

STAGES 'OPEN HOUSE' PROGRAM

An open house for parents, featuring an exhibit of school and music by an orchestra under the direction of S. K. Jorgenson, preceded the regular Parent-Teacher association at Woodland school last night.

During the meeting, A. F. Busch was elected president, Miss Edith Moore, vice president, Mrs. James Riser, secretary, and Mrs. Louis Jisa, treasurer for the ensuing year.

The group made plans for its annual spring festival, May 17, and heard talks by Wilmot Pierce, and Miss Frances Randall.

DAVEY JUDGMENTS

CLEVELAND—Confessed judgments totaling $115,340 against former Gov. Martin L. Davey and the Davey Investment Co. of Kent were recorded today. Rodney P. Lien, state superintendent of banks, brought the action as liquidator of the Guardian Trust Co. of Cleveland which held a $50,000 note given by the investment firm in 1932 and one for $35,000 given by Davey, both bearing 5 per cent interest.

Nazis Say They Have Dented Maginot Line

French Promptly Deny Claims of German Army, Say Counter-Attack Has Driven Invaders Back.

flict of position along the bloody banks of the Meuse river and the Albert canal—from France's fortified zone of the north, through the Ardennes mountains to the coastal plains of Belgium.

The Berlin radio urged the Belgians to "stack your arms . . . Germany does not want war with the Belgian nation."

Esconced now on the coast of the Netherlands, Nazi Germany's air and submarine fleet today had new and closer bases for lightning jabs against England.

A Berlin radio announcer said England could expect a body blow.

Britain sped recruiting of a home front army to fight any invasion by German parachute troops.

All but one of the 11 provinces in the Netherlands were opened today for German occupation without opposition.

Commander-In-Chief General Henri Gerard Winkelman gave the order for laying down of arms everywhere except in Zeeland, southwestern province containing the port of Vlissingen (Flushing).

Still-neutral Switzerland, fully mobilized and fearful of invasion, looked on worriedly as picked Nazi troops practiced for the third day in succession the throwing of a pontoon bridge across the Rhine, just where Nazi troops would have to cross to attack France through Switzerland.

In Italy the more pro-German elements saw in the Netherlands' capitulation further evidence of the vaunted military power of Germany, Italy's axis partner.

But Italian authorities put a stop to a new anti-Allied demonstration.

At Narvik, in northern Norway, the isolated Nazi garrison cannot possibly hold on much longer, the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported. Narvik was reported devastated by Allied bombardments of the past few days.

French Admit Only Slight Advance by Nazis

PARIS—(AP)—Nazi forces smashing at French positions south of Sedan have crossed the Meuse river and established a salient four miles deep on the south side of the river, a French war ministry spokesman said today.

The German thrust originally penetrated ten miles south of the river—or nearly 20 miles into France—this spokesman said, but a French counter-attack reduced this pocket below the river to about four miles.

He said the attack came late yesterday and a renewed German drive was expected.

The Meuse river runs generally north and south in this area and the French have been holding the west bank against the Germans on the east.

German efforts in the Sedan region, this commentator said, appeared to be the "biggest" of the entire Meuse front extending southward from Namur, Belgium.

Fresh reinforcements were arriving in the German lines from Bouillon, industrial settlement north of Sedan.

In the Belgian Ardennes mountains between Namur Dinant, the Germans established bridgeheads on the west bank of the Meuse which immediately drew strong counter-attacks from the French forces on the same side of the river.

A French military spokesman described German landings on the west side of the Meuse under Allied fire from land and air.

A German tank attack in the level region northwest of Namur near Gembloux was hurled back by French counter-attacks.

The Germans were reported to have suffered "enormous losses," particularly in tanks and their crews, and a 4-to-1 ratio in planes.

The situation of the Allies in central Belgium was declared "favorable."

Heavy French forces pushed eastward against the Germans.

The German troops were described as the "best" shock detachments. Additional reinforcements were arriving from the Neufchateau, Belgium, and also coming in behind German lines from Marche, Belgium.

French and British aerial forces, meanwhile, were laying down "tons and tons" of bombs on German rear lines, troop concentrations, highways, boats and bridges.

German planes were reported bombing the French rear guard.

East of the Moselle river in the Maginot line sector, several "very strong" local German attacks ran into defense fire from French advance posts and wilted.

One German attack in the Meuse sector was reported to have been pointed by flame-throwing tanks which shoot fire 70 yards. In the World war, flame apparatus with 15-yard range was nearly as dangerous to the handlers as to the intended victims.

Sedan, strategic French city fought over by Germans and French throughout history, was the principal southern anchor of the front which curved to the northeast and then northwest into the coastal plains of Belgium.

"Serious, but not alarming," was the way French military commentators described the trend of the battle.

Military observers declared today that the battle of the Meuse rapidly was developing into "the greatest battle in history."

Premier Hubert Pierlot in a broadcast to the nation said the Belgians had made "certain modification of defense positions according to order" and insisted there had been no German "break through."

* * * * *

PARIS—(INS)—One-fourth of the Dutch army was killed and the entire Netherlands bombing airforce was wiped out before Holland gave up the battle in the northern regions, Dutch Foreign Minister Dr. E. N. Van Kleffens told the press late today.

The Dutch foreign minister did not state exactly how many men Holland had thrown into the field. However, reliable estimates placed the total at 500,000 men. If the entire armed force was employed in an effort to stem the Nazis, Van Kleffens' statement would mean that Dutch death casualties reached the astounding figure of 125,000 men in five days.

London Claims Victories For Royal Air Force

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—"Highly successful" British air attacks behind the German lines were reported today as the Nazi conquest of Holland hammered home to Britain her own exposure to aerial raiders.

Machine-gun fire sounded this morning near the mouth of the Humber river, along the English east coast.

Berlin broadcasts heard here sharpened Britain's anxiety and spurred recruiting of a new home front army to fight a possible invasion by Nazi parachute troops.

"German planes already are within easy reach of the important English port of Harwich," a German announcer warned. "More than that, they have bases for direct attack against the whole of England . . . in this age of modern warfare, the insularity of the British Isles has ended."

Harwich is less than 125 miles from the Dutch mainland.

The air ministry said British fliers had given the French "valuable assistance" in the great battle which developed at Sedan and the crossings of the Meuse yesterday.

Britain's air force, it said, "destroyed permanent bridges and two pontoon bridges and with anti-aircraft guns brought down 15 German planes in a terrific battle near Sedan . . .

"Repeated low-flying attacks on enemy troops and tank concentrations were made."

It acknowledged loss of 35 British planes.

Even with German motorized troops reported pouring into The Hague, an authoritative Dutch source here said Netherland troops in southern Holland who were able to reach Belgium were being made the nucleus of a new army to continue the fight aganist the Germans. There was no estimate of the number.

Queen Wilhelmina, who fled to England with her government, is continuing to govern Holland's overseas empire from London.

Election Party Lasts Until 2 A. M., Phone Wires Busy

Hundreds of people drifted into and out of The News-Journal's election party last night at the corner of North Walnut and West Fourth street, as returns were flashed onto the big screen until well after 2 a. m.

A staff of 25 tabulators and a corps of telephone people and contact men from every precinct in the county worked from early evening until near dawn to compile the votes for every candidate from the 92 precincts in the county and city.

Returns from the state as compiled by the Associated Press, were interpolated with the local returns, and flashed on the screen. It was a quiet crowd, however, and there was only occasional cheering when a favorite candidate forged ahead.

Telephone wires were kept hot with inquiries from all over the city and county, both from candidates themselves and their friends.

Because of the unusual number of candidates on the ballots—a total of 195—it took longer to count the votes and the last precinct report did not come in until this morning.

CHAPTER X.
Rod's Letter.

"Why didn't he do the decent thing—come and tell me?"

Jim's full mouth curved slowly. "He couldn't face you, Brooke. And then he—he hadn't succumbed. Maybe he thought he wouldn't . . ."

"He said a letter followed." Her mind was clearing. "Do you suppose he told his mother?" She looked at him appealingly. It was the look of an ill person to a physician. The tears started again. "Oh, Jim . . ."

"It will be easier if you try to hate him. If you go soft, Brooke, it'll prolong it. Questions won't help because they won't be answered. He married her for her money because he wanted that more than he wanted you. Can't you hate him for that? When I saw those pictures, I thought of you first and then Barney Class. This'll be a blow to him, too. Sure he let his mother know—today. He's let down his friends, you and his mother and Barney. Grace won't like this. You know she won't. It's a low-down trick!" Then, "You haven't had any dinner, have you?"

"No. And I don't want any."

"I'll get you something, anyway."

She could scarcely bear it when he left her and she was alone. Getting up, she went to the window and looked out, seeing only the giant eyes of headlights and a few dark hurrying silhouettes. "I can't bear it! I can't bear it!" For the picture arose again of Irene Davies' vital face looking up into Rod's as a ship went to sea . . . It had been carefully planned—he had known when he last saw her!

Presently Jim came back with two hastily made ham sandwiches.

"I'm making some coffee, too, but it isn't quite ready."

Surprising how good the sandwiches tasted. Jim quickly finished his and went to make more, returning shortly with the coffee.

Feeling calmer but no less wretched, she said, "You might shut off a brief love affair, Jim, and train yourself not to think about it. But one in which are so many years and hopes . . ."

* * *

He looked at her kindly. "I don't think time matters. You can have a brief love affair and be cracked up when it cracks up. It all depends upon how much of you went into it." He smiled slightly. "At a time like this one would like to be very grand and strong and noble. I'm not very good at those things. All I can tell you is that I know it hurts like hell and that you've got to pull yourself together."

Had his love affair, of which Rod had spoken lightly, been brief and violent? She said, "They told me that when my mother died, Jim."

"But death is final" he said, his slow speech, quickened by anger, returning. "If you can finish this off and leave it like a footprint. . ."

"I'll never see him again. That's more unbelievable than anything else. That hurts more than anything else. I can't get that out of my mind."

Later she wondered what they had said to each other that kept her until after midnight in a room which became chillier as the hours passed. That she had been incoherent, she knew. And that Jim had been patient when he must have been bored, she realized too.

At last, one icy hand touching the other, she said, "It's late. I must be going."

"I'll take you back."

"No. If you'll get me a taxi. . ."

He nodded. "All right. I can't stay with you anyway."

* * *

Everything in the apartment looked unfamiliar as she went in and made her way to her room. As she took off her things, she noticed three things—that Ellen had turned down her bed, that the evening paper had been left on the table beside the bed, and that Rod's telegram, loathsome to see, was also on the table. Had she left it there? She couldn't remember. If Ellen had picked it up, then no doubt she had read it. . . .

In the quiet apartment the sound of the opening of the newspaper made a terrific noise. Yet she had to turn from page one to see the picture of Rod and Irene standing close, the shoulder of Irene's mink coat concealed with orchids. . . . He was looking down at her smiling and she was looking up at him, smiling brilliantly. . . .

It seemed that her heart burst again and that a new and fiercer storm raged within her. And always when her thoughts came back to this moment, she remembered her tears falling on Rod's gleaming dark head . . .

Cold bright moonlight dissolved into misty dawn, then a cloudy morning. Brooks moved from the chair when she heard Ellen stirring abut and told her in a hoarse voice to come in when Ellen tapped lightly.

* * *

Ellen did not look surprised when she saw that the bed had not been slept in and that Brooke was still wearing the dark silk frock she had worn last night. Maternal pity and kindness were in her round pale face.

"I was wondering if you'd like something to eat, Miss Brooke."

"Thank you, but I couldn't eat anything, Ellen." She was standing by the window and her throat was filling again. Didn't one ever come to the end of one's tears?

"You should try real hard. I'll fix something for you that might tempt you." Then, moving toward the door, shes aid, "I'm so sorry. Last night . . . I couldn't help . . ."

"I know. It was open and . . ."

When Ellen left, Brooks sank into the cretonne-covered chair again, telling herself what she should do—take a shower and eat—but lacking the strength and the will, telling herself with false bravado that time moved and one moved and one moved with it. But how could she when futility that was a like poison had already set in? If only she could run away. But where? Her thoughts of the past and this moment and the future collided again, and she stiffened when the picture flashed of Rod and Irene as they must be this morning. When Ellen came in with a tray, Brooke was thinking that she would always detest this room. But instantly she saw Rod's letter stare at her from the tray. When Ellen went out Brooke opened the white envelope with cold hands.

Brooke, dear,

I have tried to spare you all the hurt I could. Try to forgive me and try not to hate me. This isn't an impulsive act. I've thought about it very carefully and I believe that you and I waited too long.

Rod.

Her hands fell open. That was all.

At 10 o'clock she knocked on Mrs. Kingsbury's door, and heard her usual "Come in."

The old lady looked at her closely, squinting when Brooke sat in a chair beside her bed.

"Ellen told me," she said her lipless mouth compressed. "Men!" Then, "You'll be all right. You're young and pretty and too young to get married anyway."

When Brooke's eyes filled with hated tears, Mrs. Kingsbury said, "And now you'll be able to go to California with me in June, won't you?"

Escape? "I suppose I shall. There's no reason . . . "No reason now.

The old lady brightened "Splendid."

* * *

Jim telephoned at noon and she promised to see him that evening. The afternoon mail brought a letter from Grace, distressed and angry. Brooke read it without feeling, appreciative of the concern Rod's mother felt for her, yet knowing that Grace's love for her son would soon outweigh her momentary disappointment in him. No doubt Grace now would have the leisure and comfort she so much deserved. There was a letter from Helen also, filled with conventional expressions of sympathy. Across the miles she could hear her father say, "I told her he wouldn't marry her."

Taking unfamiliar streets, she walked that afternoon, pitying herself but feeling grateful when something, anything diverted her for a moment. Yesterday, she would have smiled at the argument between two little men who stood in the center of the pavement and disputed more with gesticulations than with words. Yesterday her eyes would have softened with admination at a blond pink-cheeked little girl clutching her books and munching an apple. But when she had passed the men and the little girl, her mind took up again its agonizing questions and its torturing pictures of the past. Yet somehow the immense futility seemed worse than anything else. That day was the beginning of many similar walks along unfamiliar streets.

On Brooke's return, Ellen greeted her with, "Mr. Glass called and said for you to call him."

Barney Glass! She hadn't thought of him today. Thanking Ellen, she went to her room and called the number she had been calling for three years.

But it was Barney's secretary who answered and said, after Brooke gave her name, "Mr. Glass would like you to stop in his office tomorrow at 1 o'clock."

Jim frequently was tardy but came promptly that evening. She had never been so glad to see him before. A little later she was looking across a white-clothed table at him with eyes that felt dead.

"I'm dull company, Jim."

"I asked for it, didn't I?"

"Two things happened today. Mrs. Kingsbury asked me to go to California with her and Barney Glass wants to see me tomorrow at 1." She shook her head and smiled. "But nothing leaves much impression. I'm too numb."

"Go to California? That's a break for you, Brooke!"

"In a way, yes. It's something to do, anyway. Do you suppose Barney wants a—a post-mortem?" I sound bitter, she thought. Even my voice is harsh.

Jim said, "Don't forget that Barney had a blow, too. He had great hopes for Rod and took a lot of criticism for pulling him up from the ranks." His serene blue eyes looked at her directly. "Damn it, I have to bite my tongue to keep from saying the old hokum that you're young and beautiful and what's one man in your life. I'd like to say something constructive."

She shook her head. "I can't get myself straight. I can't think clearly. Everything is still as confused as a dream." Should she tell him that there had been moments today when she feared for her sanity, when people on the street had stared at her curiously? She had to call herself to sharp attention now or be lost again and groping and crying.

DOCTORS LIVE LONG AVERAGE

Life Span of Medics Found Surpassing That of Other Groups.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Doctors live longer on the average than the general population, according to figures released by the American Medical Association.

Also the age at death in the case of physicians has jumped nearly two and one-half years in the last decade, the journal points out.

In its annual analysis of the deaths of 3,879 doctors in 1939, the journal stated that the average age at death was 66.1 years, an increase of 2.4 years from 63.7 of 1930.

It has been established that the life expectancy of the average American is considerably higher than a few decades ago. A recent survey gave the life expectancy as 59.6 for the average American or 6.5 years below the medical profession.

The dangerous age for doctors, the Medical Association report showed in this group. The 70-74 class was second with 569 deaths, the 60-64 third with 529 and the 75-79 fourth with 459.

Heart disease was the leading cause of death with 1,585 ascribed to it.

SAUSAGE MAKER GETS EDUCATION

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—University of Pittsburgh students do everything from sausage-making to hula-hula dancing to work their way through school, a survey discloses.

Both men and women students earn extra money through part-time work, the student placement bureaus reported, although male students have a far wider possible choice of work.

Probably the most enterprising working student is Jack Hoevelar, senior and leader in campus activities. Hoevler gets money to pay his tuition by operating a sausage business, making and marketing several hundred pounds of the meat weekly.

ERROR 20 YEARS

NEW BRITAIN, Conn.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Rose Vaskalis thought that when she married an alien in 1920 she automatically lost her United States citizenship. She didn't find out otherwise until 20 years later when she went through the formality of taking out naturalization papers and was told it was unnecessary.

Gives Graduation Talk

Elsie Robinson, whose column appears in this newspaper and hundreds of others, will make the commencement day address at Mac Murray college, Jacksonville, Ill., and at the same time receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters, on June 2.

Pronunciation Of New Names In War Stories

(By Associated Press)

The names by which numerous Dutch towns are known are anglicized and therefore, there is no authority for their pronunciation. Amsterdam and Rotterdam, however, are Dutch names, pronounced phonetically.

The Hague, seat of government, is commonly known as Den Haag, pronounced "Den Hog." The English tongue is seldom equal to pronounciation of The Hague's formal name, S-Gravenhage, but an approximation is "Schrawvenhogga."

Here are a few others: (Accent on first syllable):

Moostricht: "Mahsschtrick"
Nieuwe Maas: "Neeuh Mahss"
Ijsselmeer (Zuider Zee): "Aisalmaire."
Waalhaven: "Vahlhahvan."
Roermond: "Roormunt."

Some Belgian names (Accent on last syllables):

Liege: "Leeaizjhe."
Malmedy: "Mahlmaydee."
Brussels: "Breussell."
Antwerp: "Ahnvair" (French, not Flemish, pronunciation).
Ardennes: "Ardenn."
Namus: "Mahmeur."

BLENDED 33 TIMES TO MAKE ONE GREAT BEER

Pabst Blue Ribbon

IT TAKES 33 SEPARATE BREWS TO MAKE A SINGLE GLASS OF THIS DELICIOUS BEER!

● As thousands of beer lovers set down a cool, clear glass of Pabst Blue Ribbon, they say: "Gosh, how do they do it?"

Well, one swift answer is . . . 33 Blends! . . . Not one, or two, or five, but 33 separate "brews" from 33 separate kettles!

Each brew is as fine as choicest ingredients and Pabst's 96 years of experience can make it!

But brewing is a natural process, and Nature never yields two brews that are exactly alike even with the same formula and strict scientific control. That's why Pabst goes to so much extra work and expense to bring together 33 separate brews in perfect blend—dictated by the Blue Ribbon formula.

As in the finest champagnes, coffee, tobacco, it's expertly balanced blending that gives Blue Ribbon its unvarying goodness.

The result is: America's Premium Beer . . . with a smoothness that is unique . . . and a taste that is always the same.

Sometime today, have the pleasure of meeting Blue Ribbon.

Congress Spurred to Quick Action on Defense Plans

PREPAREDNESS APPEAL MADE BY PERSHING

Roosevelt Urges Armaments Increase; Asserts Cost Secondary Matter.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Rearmament appeals by President Roosevelt and Gen. John J. Pershing spurred congressional leaders today to promise quick action—and almost certain acceptance—of an extraordinary defense program expected to cost $976,000,000.

While awaiting a special message from the president today or tomorrow, lawmakers, conscious of the uncertain tide of battle in Europe, devoted most of their attention to a study of army and navy needs.

Gen. Pershing, who led the A. E. F. in France two decades ago, counselled against any delay.

"Every energy in this country should be devoted to the idea of putting the United States in a condition of thorough preparedness against the possibility of war," he said.

"Prepardness is as necessary today as it was when war was declared in 1917, and we find ourselves in the same condition."

The 79-year-old general pointed out that then the Allies "protected us during more than a year of preparation.

"Today," he added, "the situation is utterly different."

President Roosevelt, working in his shirt sleeves, conferred yesterday with congressional and military leaders and then told reporters that the armament race had been forced upon the country and that it must keep abreast.

National defense is the important thing, he said, and the method of financing it is of secondary consideration.

Authoritative sources said that the president would recommend an increase of $726,000,000 in army funds and $250,000,000 more for the navy. The objectives would be to complete equipment for 1,000,000 troops, put warship construction in high gear, and bulwark coast defenses.

This emergency fund would swell national defense outlays for the year starting July 1 to about $2,724,000,000—by far a peacetime record.

The house naval committee already has tackled the problem of speeding up lagging fleet construction.

It opened an investigation yesterday of the delays in completion of 68 warships now on the ways and heard the navy recommend a $300,000,000 additional appropriation to accelerate the work.

Although Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that he would have no recommendations to congress regarding the financing of the expanded Army-Navy program, some sentiment was developing in both houses in favor of special taxes to raise the money. Earlier this year, the president recommended that new taxes be imposed to raise $460,000,000 for defense.

Senator Connally (D-Tex), however, reported considerable disposition to see whether rearmament could be financed otherwise.

Kiwanis Party to Mark 20th Year Of Club's Life

Twenty years of service in Mansfield will be celebrated by the Kiwanis club during an anniversary party at 6:30 p. m. Thursday in the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom.

Wives of members and at least 12 past governors of the Ohio Kiwanis district and six of the present lieutenant governors will be guests at the party which is expected to be one of the big events in Kiwanis history in Ohio.

Ed Arras, past international president, will be the principal speaker, and along with Don Mumford of Bellefontaine, governor of Ohio Kiwanis, will head the list of prominent Kiwanis officials expected to attend the party.

The evening's program is in charge of a committee headed by Harold Balyeat, and will include musical numbers and motion pictures of "Human Leopards of Africa." All of the first officers of the club and most of the charter members are expected to take part in the activities. Frank C. Poling, who helped organize the club here and who served as Ohio district governor in 1921-22, will be in charge of the birthday party and will preside during the program.

Republican voters in the county yesterday marked their ballots for a number of presidential candidates, but next to Senator Robert A. Taft, whose name was on the ballot, Thomas E. Dewey of New York was the most popular. Dewey received a number of "write-in" votes. Others included Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, Judge Charles Montgomery of the Fifth district appeals court, and Wendell Wilkie, frequently mentioned as a dark horse candidate. One Democratic voter wrote in the name of Gov. John W. Bricker for governor.

CONGRESS WAITS DEFENSE PLAN

Ready to Act Favorably on Any Recommendation By Roosevelt.

tive's aides doubted if he would have the important document ready today.

Congressional leaders who have talked with the president hint that he will propose new appropriations and authorizations for the military establishment running between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000.

In advance of actual submission of his message, the president would only say that the sum would run pretty high—and that fast action in making it available was imperative. The question of meeting the inevitable bill can wait until later, he implied.

One of the conferees who sat in at White House conferences wherein the latest national defense program was evolved predicted that Mr. Roosevelt would not ask for money to build new fighting planes immediately, despite the deadly strength Germany has displayed with her air arm. Neither, it was reported, would more naval construction be requested.

Rather, it was predicted that the president would ask for a material increase in the army, further mechanization, and acquisition of vitally needed anti-air and anti-tank guns and automatic rifles.

U. S. FEARS ITALY READY FOR LEAP INTO WAR BESIDE NAZIS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A belief that Italy is preparing very soon to enter the European war on Germany's side was strongly held today in Washington official and diplomatic quarters.

In view of a hope that "eleventh-hour" efforts of American diplomacy might yet prevent a spread of war to the Mediterranean, officials were extremely restrained in their public statements. Privately they were pessimistic.

Ambassador William Phillips in Rome was reported to be in constant and close touch with the Italian government. For the past two weeks he has tried through every means consistent with his position as a neutral diplomat to demonstrate to the Duce's government the advantages of remaining at peace.

Adolf Hitler's smashing success in his northern "blitzkrieg," however, is understood to have weighed heavily on Il Duce's mind.

Mussolini is regarded in Washington circles as frankly opportunistic, ready to plunge in on Germany's side once he is convinced that he is backing a winner and that Italy, sharing in the spoils of victory, may add coveted Tunsia, a part of French Somaliland and perhaps the French provinces of Nice and Savoy to the "new Roman empire."

In view of the growth of war fever in Rome, keen concern was felt in the state department over the safety of the thousands of Americans in Italy. More than 19,000 American passport holders were in that country on Jan. 10.

BRITAIN CALLS MINUTE MEN IN NEW WAR PERIL

Fears Blitzkrieg as Nazis Hold Dutch Airports Half Hour Away.

LONDON—(U.P.)—British "minute men," responding to a government call for volunteers, jammed police stations today after a German conquest of Holland which brought the Nazi air force within 30 minutes' flying distance of the British coast.

Germany had obtained 18 Dutch civil and military airdromes, the closest within 112 miles of the coast, and German long distance planes were now able to fly freely across Holland from bases in Germany.

In Belgium, a communique of British general headquarters said, the British expeditionary force was moving according to plan and maintaining contact with the Germans.

Official information was that the Germans were now committed to a quick finish fight and that a battle which might have started already in full fury would be the supreme test of the strength of the whole British Empire.

Germany had shortened the flying distance to Britain so that the threat of a blitzkrieg attack on the British Isles was now imminent. Further, Germany was given additional striking power in Belgium, because its planes, taking off from Dutch fields, could harry Allied troops and fighter planes, based on Dutch airdromes, could intercept British bomber planes bound for northern Germany.

Anthony Eden, new war secretary, in a speech to the nation last night, appealed for "large numbers" of volunteers for his local defense force. Through the danger to the country of the parachutist troop landings ought not to be exaggerated, he said, the government had laid full plans for the prompt defeat of any German parachutists who might dare a landing in Britain.

The result of the appeal was that within a few minutes thousands of boys and men, ranging in years from 17 to 65, were crowding police stations and lining up outside to volunteer.

THIEF SOUGHT

He Takes Mansfielder's Car Then Wrecks It.

Police today were seeking the driver of a stolen car which was involved in an auto accident two minutes after the owner missed it.

At 9:07 last night John Barnhart, R. D. 1, told police that his car had been stolen from the downtown section. Two minutes later the Barnhart car ran into another car on Newman street near the Mansfield Tire and Rubber plant.

Two men jumped from the car and ran, according to witnesses. Police today were questioning an Ashland man, who was stopped and held by employes of the tire company. Police held him for investigation after he told them he had been a passenger in the car, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

BROADWAY BULLETIN BOARD.

Eddy Duchin, the maestro, and June Robbins, his honey-haired vocalist, are Too Romantic. . . . Great Britain expects Italy to enter the Second World War on Friday of this week, and has a formidable surprise waiting for Mussolini. . . . Patricia (Glamor) Plunkett's current heart throb is William Grace Holloway, jr., of the Grace Line fortune. . . .

"Pittsburgh Phil" Strauss, of Murder Inc., who won a trial severance on a deal with the Brooklyn authorities, hasn't "sung" as loud or as long as was expected—so he'll be tried for murder immediately after his colleagues, unless his squealing improves. . . .

Gertrude Niesen, the lark, and Edgar James, Paulette Goddard's ex-husband, are very warm for May. . . . Samuel Goldwyn will launch a blitzkrieg against the double feature. He expects to lose money on the crusade, but figures it's worth it.

Al Jolson, not only will have his former wife, Ruby Keeler, as a principal in his new musical—but he's assigned a major role to his current honey, Gloria Cook! . . . Col. Gonzalo Gomez, the fabulously wealthy Latin, has cancelled his scheduled "good-will" tour on orders of his bride, Joyce Matthews. (The Colonel, when he came to this country, brought $1,600,000 spending money!) . . .

Marjorie Graham, of the Graham-Paige motor car family, and Clifford Forbes, the sportswriter's brother, eloped last week. . . . Mrs. Jack Benny is having her nose resculptured.

Talk Around Town.

Belle Baker and her estranged husband, Elias Sugarman (editor of Billboard) are doing the tables for two for the first time in almost two years, with the Broadwayites betting they'll reconcile. . . . Gene Fowler, the quipper, is taking bows for starting the Arlene Judge-Jimmy Bryant marriage rumors, just to rib a Louisville journalist.

Milton Berle lost $10,000 when "Heavenly Express" jumped the track. . . .Anita Colby and Fred Drake, both of Harpers Bazaar, are back in circulation—together.

Buddy DeSylva is making his son, Dave Shelley, wait six months before marrying Libby Bennett, the "Too Many Girls" chorine. . . . Barbara Bannister, who can afford those little luxuries, has chartered a plane to fly her friends to her opening at the Bowery Club in Detroit.

* * *

President Roosevelt has told army officials in Washington to "stop fooling" and get some airworthy planes—the idea being to stop experimenting with plane types, settle on a good ship, and buy a great many.

The state department has concurred with the president in the theory that the best way to keep out of the European conflict is to enlarge the army and navy, and in particular to greatly increase our air power.

Alex D'Arcy has left the cast of "Keep Off the Grass," after a tiff—and is returning to Hollywood to straighten out a more personal rift, with Arlene Whelan.

One of the oldest of the 52nd street spots is about to fold. The mortgage was foreclosed over the week-end. June Preisser, the starlet, and Jack Hopkins, 19-year-old brother of the ex-city manager of Cleveland, are sniffing orange blossoms.

"American Jubilee" almost didn't open when the Pennsylvania boys in the cast revolted and refused to go on until they saw cash. Wynn Murray's tiff over billing didn't help. . . .

Newest nomination for the town's glamor girl title is Patricia Garfield, a model from Kansas. When she made her first appearance at the Kit Kat, 29 stags made passes at her phone number!

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Things looked bad that day. The word had been around for a couple of weeks that Mickey Mouse was playing around the stock exchange.

If Mickey Mouse were going to go big business, Walt Disney and Disney's studio might change. You can measure the catastrophe of such a change only if you know Disney and the Disney studio as they are.

The old studio was being evacuated, regardless. A big new plant has been going up on 51 spreading acres of Burbank soil to accommodate the growing Disney professional family.

It is a beautiful new plant, red brick buildings and yellow and green trim, modern in style and done out with all the new gadgets and comforts and conveniences, including a big studio dining room and a theater where the employes go to see movies their own and other plants'—at set showings each day.

* * *

I WAS worried because the removal to the new factory, still in progress, could change the Disney atmosphere as drastically as a Disney venture into big business. So I went out and browsed around the big new lot, and I'm happy to report that Disney is still Disney, and the Disney lot is still like no other in this town or any other.

The artists work in roomier, air-conditioned, more convenient quarters, but their walls are still adorned with those extra-curricular inspirations indicative of the sans-souci spirit of old.

There were ideas floating around, bright ideas, gags and "situations" which, for the most part, would be hooted down at the first story conferences. There were already exchanges of "window art" across adjoining courtyards, with running "gags" tossed back and forth across the open spaces. There were, just as of old, a weird assortment of informal working costumes—sweaters and slacks in all shades, and a prevalent hatlessness which was only one of the lot's many similarities to a college campus.

There was Walt himself in a leather jacket, still being called plain "Walt" by everybody in sight.

* * *

I EST the new stockholders view with alarm and send a delegation of efficiency men to remedy things, let it be said now that this is the organization and the spirit that has put Disney on top of his field. If they try to change it, they'll change the product—and they wouldn't like that, would they?

There may be other lots with almost as much loyalty to the head man as here, there certainly are lots with more formidable lines of time-clocks, but there isn't another with a higher morale.

The play spirit is part of the work, which goes on in a strenuous fashion for all the surface fun.

"I did a sequence the other day," said one of the animators, "and I worked on it hard. I didn't get it right, so I kept on working, without stopping. I had the staggers when I quit. Next day, I looked over all I'd done, and the stuff I did when I was too tired was worse than the first one. Now I relax a few minutes between tries, and it pays."

Walt Disney knows it pays.

Youthful Tragedies Need Help

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A wild-eyed, distraught-looking boy, speeding along in a car, beside him a grim-faced policeman. Every little while the boy asks: "Will they give me the limit? Will I burn for this?" There rises in his mind the frightful realization that the 16-year-old schoolmate sweetheart he shot "only to frighten her" is dead. His mother, packing his few little belongings that would make him more comfortable in jail and sending them by the pastor of their church. She doesn't talk about her son's plight. She is still confused.

And the white-faced youngster, answering routine questions put to him, realizing little but that he was jealous—awfully jealous. He wanted to scare her and keep her from having dates with other boys.

Another case, that of a promising boy of 17 who killed himself. He, too, was jealous. His girl had gone out with another boy. He didn't try to kill the girl; he just left a note for his parents, blaming no one, just saying goodbye.

In writing of these tragedies, the papers have spoken of them as caused by "puppy love." But they are more than that. Youngsters in the grip of emotions they don't understand see no way out but death. It's impossible for them to realize that within six months or a year they're likely to meet someone else who will make the despair of their first "serious" love affair seem funny.

Wouldn't it be well to inaugurate a class in Social Relations in high schools? And wouldn't a dash of humor be a saving grace? A clever teacher could wisely, humorously and understandingly slip into the required reading some really good literature which would deal with this so-called "puppy love."

English classics have some mighty good specimens. Dickens and Thackeray have both dealt with it, also Booth Tarkington. Youngsters could be brought to a realization of the humor of this mystery called falling in love.

It would not be too difficult to instill in the minds of students that this tornado of the emotions which has swept them out of their accustomed groove is not something reserved for them alone. That all the hum-drum, drab-looking, middle-aged creatures they see in buses, on the streets, in the movies, have, in all probability, been subjected to the rigors of first-love. And, like the tides, it ebbs and flows.

CUCUMBER CULTURE

Cucumbers, when given proper care are so prolific that a few plants in the vegetable garden will yield enough cucumbers for the average small family. Because of the bountiful harvests the plants provide proper culture of cucumbers pays.

Cucumbers are grown in hills, and while the hills can be prepared in advance the seeds should not be planted until both the soil and the air are well warmed. The seeds should be planted half an inch deep.

Plant ten to twelve cucumber seeds in each hill. Later thin out the seedlings, leaving only three of the strongest plants to each hill as shown in today's Garden-Graph.

Cucumbers are heavy feeders, therefore when preparing the hills place a shovelful of manure in each hill.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I am most honored, my dear child," he said, "overjoyed that you will bear my name. And now, with your permission, I shall explain to the cast just what your role will be. Perhaps Mrs. Graham will keep you occupied so you may not be too embarrassed by what may seem fulsome praise."

I took the hint, and with an air of playfulness turned Olina around so that she, Mary, Lillian and I stood in a little group by ourselves while Mr. Veritzen talked.

"Congratulations, Olina!" Lillian said. "I didn't know you had it in you. You've certainly torn the leaves open all right. It will be plain sailing for you from now on."

"I must tell you," he began, "that in her own country the prin—my future daughter," he hastily amended with palpable pride, "is counted a harpist of the first rank. She has studied under the best teachers of Europe, and has more than once been offered brilliant professional engagements. These she could not accept because of the limitations her royal rank imposed upon her.

"But all that has been changed now," he went on, "and Mrs. Graham has discovered that in the first act of the play the action will really be enhanced by the soft playing of a harp in the background. The music will be played by the prin—by Miss Veritzen"—he finally brought it out—"who will also have a very few words to say, just enough to make the harp motif plausible. I am sure I can count on your warm welcome to this singularly gifted young woman, and your co-operation in making her first professional appearance a success. And now, I should like to introduce each one of you in person."

They rose from their seats, as he evidently expected them to do, and came toward him. He turned to our group and beckoned first Olina, and then I was relieved to see him summon Mary also. As he began the introductions, Lillian spoke again to me almost noiselessly from the corner of her mouth.

"It's all right for him to present those people to Olina—it won't hurt those two over there to have their dignity shattered a bit," —she indicated the two actresses whose jealousy of Mary I had observed—"but I do hope he doesn't make the mistake of naming Nancy Carew in the wrong place. No, he's doing the correct thing. I thought old Phil would be too foxy to make that particular faux pas."

Clear and resonant we heard the great producer's tones: "Miss Carew, may I present Miss Veritzen?" and heard the gracious response of the old actress:

"Welcome, my dear, to the ranks of the most thankless and the most prized profession in the world."

No Control Causes Troubles

By CARRY CLEVELAND MYERS Ph. D.

OFTEN I feel sorry for both the uncontrolled young child and his mother. Neither can be happy. Almost surely the mother is worn and weary. Many a mother, indeed, goes to an untimely grave because she was unable, by using the so-called modern methods to control her little child.

In this event, who spoiled the child? Who killed the mother?

Those who, presuming to be experts, told her not to restrain her child when she might have done so with profit to her and him? Those who made her believe she should use no physical punishment whatsoever to restrain him?

Below is a sample of what may happen when the doctrine of no-spanking in the early years is accepted by a conscientious mother. It is a good sample, moreover, of how much worse modes of punishment than spanking will be resorted to in desperation by the parent who supposes she must never spank.

"Dear Dr. Myers—We have a little girl of three and one-half. She has a brother of one year.

Incident at Table.

"While having our dinner this evening the phone rang. Leaving her at the table, I answered it. I did not stay more than a few minutes, but by the time I got back she had emptied a bottle of French dressing into her plate, also the baby's Junket, which she got off the sink, and was feeding the French dressing to the baby. Everyone tells me not to spank her so I don't. I put her in her room with no lights. It is off the kitchen so it wasn't pitch dark. While she was supposed to be punished she emptied the dresser drawers and was trying to put on her brother's suit. After being put to bed she got up, went into the bathroom and undressed herself, and then climbed up on the crib and emptied the medicine cabinet. The door being shut, closing off these rooms from the living room, we did not hear her right away.

"I have put her in the closet, spanked her, twitched her ears and taken toys away from her, but nothing helps. We have bought her all sorts of things to amuse her, but she doesn't seem ever to be taken up with anything for very long. We can't move where she will have any playmates until July and I think I will lose my mind by then."

Tried Her Best.

Who can condemn this mother? She has tried her best. In desperation she has even resorted to spanking and, of course, to no avail, since it was not a part of a carefully-planned and consistently-operated program.

In writing this mother I advised her to select a few specific things she would train this child never to do, then to give the child instant pain (several smacks on her bare fat thighs) every time she did the forbidden thing; as soon as the child would stay where put, to assign her to sit for 20 minutes in a chair in the mother's presence, this in lieu of spanking; and to intercept the child in respect to other things until the meaning of NO had been well established. Moreover, she was urged to read to this child, answer all her questions, show appreciation of her creations, however crude, and be more liberal with affections; to attract, hire or borrow some playmates for her child; and to get herself away from the children occasionally, letting the father assume more responsibility for their care.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

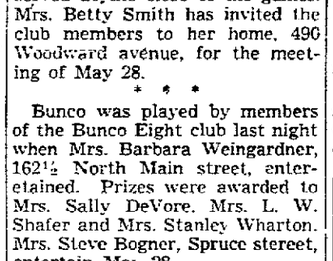
"The Authority on Authorities"

LINING UP A SQUEEZE

MANY OF the nicest squeeze plays—even double ones which squeeze both defenders—are just naturally dealt into the cards, so that all the declarer has to do is run off his consecutive winners and let the opponents do the squirming. Occasionally the declarer has some real work to do first, however, in order to produce a lineup whereby a squeeze is possible, with the arrangements of cards left to the victims such that they cannot do anything about it.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	4 ♣	4 ♠	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 ♠

When West led the club Q, it became clear to the declarer that a squeeze was the best chance for his contract, a double squeeze in which both opponents would have to try to guard the third diamond, with West protecting against a second club and East against a third heart. But that could not be done unless East could be forced to get rid of the club K which was marked in his hand by the lead.

Lee Hazen, whose fine work on this deal helped him finish second in the recent national individual masters championship, found the way to dispose of East's club K. After taking the lead with the club A and cashing dummy's two trumps, he led dummy's club 2, the K going on and getting ruffed. Followed three more spades, a heart to the Q and A, the heart K winning the return, then the last spade.

On this tenth trick, West had to keep the club J to guard dummy's 6, so tossed one of his three diamonds, whereupon the club was shed from dummy. Now East was pinched. If he threw a diamond, three tricks would come in that suit; if his heart, the 9 would be good for South. He picked a diamond, so the final tricks were made there. Had that second club not been led and ruffed, East could have guarded the heart and club and West could have protected the diamonds, so there would have been no squeeze.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If East had made an overcall in spades, how should South play for 6-Hearts against a lead of the club 8?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 16.

Unusual and surprising activity may be looked for on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects of inciting planets. There may be a very surprising turn of events, with much transpiring which may have a radical and far-reaching influence on the future life and fortunes. Much depends upon making a wise and beneficial choice under this critical but progressive urge. The energies, abilities and emotions as well are under creative and dynamic stimuli. Important new projects, or extremely progressive programs, with the element of the novel, revolutionary or idealistic, are under thrilling insistence. Romance and adventure are in the air and youth must have its fling.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year of most thrilling and romantic adventure, with all things of a new, novel, unique or revolutionary cast being assured of probably spectacular fulfillment. Youth, modernism and audacity, whether in science, invention, wild forms of creative expression or emotional thrills, seem to clamor for attention, spectacular achievement. But there are some obstacles and opposition of the mighty to vanquish with trepidity and persistency. All progressive and speculative attempts seem to thrive.

A child born on this day should be richly endowed with talents of a rare order, with intellectual, literary, scientific, inventive and creative skill to assure it renown or public acclaim in any number of novel achievements or adventures. Audacious, progressive and romantic, it may have little cooperation from those in high places financially.

CLASS MEETS.

There were 12 present for the regular meeting of the Dorcas class of the St. Matthew's Lutheran church yesterday when Mrs. Ray Myers, West Fifth street, entertained. After the routine business meeting cards and games were played. Mrs. E. H. Duvall and Mrs. Carl Willis were the winners. Mrs. William Isaman, Newman street, and Mrs. Charles Newlon will entertain June 11.

MISS STANLEY BRIDE OF CHARLES A. BECK

Formal Ceremony Performed Yesterday Afternoon at First Christian Church; Pair Will Live In Chicago.

ONE of the few mid-week weddings in Mansfield was solemnized yesterday at the First Christian church at 2:15 p. m. with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiating when Miss Blanche Elaine Stanley and Charles Arthur Beck exchanged their vows. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Stanley, 3 Park drive, was attired in a white net gown made over a satin foundation.

Trimming included lace inserts in the skirt folds. Her veil was the fingertip length held in place by a head band of sweet peas and white roses. She carried roses and sweet peas in the same virginal shade made in the round front style, and also wore a gold bracelet with diamond and onyx settings.

Mrs. Richard A. Doerr was matron of honor. She wore an aqua blue starched netting gown in the floor length trimmed with pink bows, and a headband of pink and yellow roses. Her arm bouquet was made of similar flowers with the addition of sweet peas.

Louis Case was best man.

Nuptial music was played during the ceremony by Mrs. H. H. Clingan. In addition to the traditional wedding march she chose "Indian Love Call," "Dream Song," "I Love You Truly" and "Dreams."

Relatives and a few friends were entertained at Scottie's on the Ashland road following the wedding.

Mr. Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Beck, 516 East Townview circle, is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school. He attended Ashland college and the Parks Air college, and is now a first officer and lieutenant of the American Air lines.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Stanley wore a gown of pink lace with a white coat and accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and orchid sweet peas. Mrs. Beck wore a flowered blue print dress with a powder blue coat and hat and shoes to match. Her corsage was also in shades of pink and orchid.

The couple left immediately yesterday for Chicago where they will make their home. For traveling the bride wore a pink and grape colored dress with coat and shoes in the grape shade and pink accessories.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

IT LOOKS pretty much as though summer has beat spring to the draw this year, because while spring has put in its appearance only on rare occasions since its official debut in March, summer is here ahead of time with the days as warm as those we customarily experience along about mid-July. . . . So if this preview is any indication of the temperatures summer has in store for us, you'll want to be prepared with several cool and comfortable dresses in your wardrobe. . . . Perhaps the best way to attain some of these crisp frocks is to make them for yourself. . . . One of the downtown stores is showing crease-resistant voils, which should be ideal for summertime wear—these come in dots and tiny floral prints in a variety of shades, such as pale pink, blue and lavender, as well as navy, dubonnet and brown. . . . Rayon sheer dotted materials in blue and rose tones are also smart—with brown rapidly gaining in popularity.

When it comes to trimming your dress, you'll be delighted with the perky buttons the shops are featuring now. . . . Gay little white daisies smile up from bright red, yellow, green and blue buttons—in three sizes, while other flower buttons come in white with pastel shades of pink, yellow, blue and green edging their petals. . . . Stud sets are also smart for the more tailored frocks, and this year's styles feature plain pearl ones as well as a variety of colored and crystal designs. . . The military influence has invaded the button field too—with clever twists of red, white and blue in several sizes.

* * *

White footgear already has put in a timid appearance about town, but with the warm weather apparently here to stay, undoubtedly most everyone will be wearing white shoes soon now. . . . Brown and white combinations are leading the parade so far as milady's summer shoes are concerned—with styles in blue and white and black and white as runners-up. . . . Most of these are pumps with spectator, or a little higher heels—some being built-up, and a great many featuring open toes. . . . The only occasion for open heels this season is in evening sandals, while the newest trend is toward high-heeled wedgies. . . . In plain white shoes, ties with closed toes are the most practical and popular. . . . And if you go in for extremes, you might have a look at some of those ski heels and platform soles that the fashion-setting shoes are featuring for the summer.

* * *

IF YOU'RE shopping for summertime accessories, you'll be pleased with the new white purses they have these days. . . . Calf, kid, ostrich and alligator grain pocketbooks are all being shown—some trimmed with gold and others with white composition. . . . While some of these purses are lined with white, the majority of them have navy blue and black linings to protect them from soil.

* * *

A lovely new summertime fragrance, introduced by the makers of Early American "Old Spice," is "Friendship's Garden"—a gay, subtle and feminine scent, which seems to have captured the moonlight-and-lace loveliness of an old Southern garden. . . . This alluring odor is being presented in toilet water, contained in a charming four-ounce bottle—decorated with a spray of green leaves and bobnails, this bottle was inspired by a miniature American bottle (over 100 years old) hand-blown by an itinerant glass-blower. . . . Oh, and by the way, there's a little floral decorated folder attached to each bottle, containing symbols of the language of the flowers compressed in the fragrance—"Violets, a token of modesty; primroses for early youth; pinks denote pure love, and heliotropes betoken admiration."

* * *

YOU'LL want just the right make-up to compliment your summer wardrobe, and "Candy Cane" will prove to be the very lipstick you're looking for. . . . Its case, with red-pink and white spirals, looks much like a cinnamon candy stick, and it's a shade of red that will go with everything—bright and vivid, it has a hint of pink in it that is more important than starch for pert cotton costumes. . . . Then to complete this saga of 'everything nice with sugar and spice,' the Candy Cane lipstick has a loose-powder, snuff-box compact to match—its oval lid is circled with pin-wheel stripes to look like a giant cinnamon drop—so it's the very thing for all summer occasions.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Auxiliary Holds Dinner Party At Hall Tuesday Night

Mrs. Mary Shambaugh was general chairman of the affair, and a covered-dish dinner was served at tables decorated with pink and white appointments, mixed spring flowers and lighted tapers.

Mrs. Flossie Thrush gave a toast to the mothers, and her own mother, Mrs. Mary Cline, responded with a toast to the daughters. A toast to the grandmothers was given by Miss Peggy Morgan. The auxiliary then presented a boach to Mrs. Laura Baughman in appreciation of her loyalty and untiring services to the organization.

During the musical portion of the program, Mrs. Elizabeth Blocher gave a vocal solo, and Mrs. Marjorie Woodhull and Mrs. Marcella Seymour sang a duet. Mrs. Mary Somers, chaplain, offered a prayer, which was followed by group singing. Another meeting will be held at the hall on May 28.

Fourth Street resident also had nagging pains in back. Arms and limbs were tired and achy. Tells of wonderful relief Vendol gave.

MRS. CLARENCE RUNGE

"I was constipated all the time and my kidneys were sluggish in action, and I'm sure this was causing all my aches, pains, and suffering," stated Mrs Clarence Runge of 87 E. Fourth Street, Mansfield to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"After meals my stomach would start grumbling and sour gas seemed to fill me up till I was terribly distressed and uncomfortable. Acid risings came up and burned my throat and I often suffered from "heartburn."

"At times I'd have 'hunger pains' between meals, yet I didn't want to eat and my head frequently ached terribly. I often had nagging pains in my back, and limbs would feel tired and ache something awful. There were some nights when these pains kept me from sleeping well.

"I started taking Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets because so many people spoke highly of them and I really believe they helped me from the first day. I never had anything act to relieve my constipation so nicely; then all the stomach distress, gas, sourness, and bloated feeling passed off. Vendol also acted on my kidneys in a nice, smooth manner.

"I never have a backache, pain in my arms or limbs any more and really feel wonderful since taking Vendol, so I credit it with all the grand relief I got."

RELIEF MONEY WASTE CHARGED

House Investigators Declare Program Made Vehicle For Communism.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—House investigators charged today in an exhaustive report on an inquiry covering 13 states that the federal relief program has been made a vehicle of Communism, waste, politics and private benefit.

Their report dealt with sources of specific instances of irregularities on federal work projects. It accused Washington WPA officials of spending excessive amounts on travel and of approving projects without sufficient information about them or with foreknowledge that the sponsors could not contribute their share.

The charges were laid before Works Projects Commissioner F. C Harrington before being made public. Harrington defended the agency's record as a whole, although he admitted making mistakes

The report dealt with material gathered by investigators in Louisiana Washington, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island New Hampshire, Georgia, Montana, California, Florida, Connecticut, Indiana and New York City, and the headquarters here.

Mansfield Drops 8-6 Decision; Plays Here Tonight

Proceeds From Amateur Fight To Start Fund

Friendly House Stages Show for Medical Fund to Pay Expenses for Injured Boxers.

By CHARLES MARTIN

AMATEUR FIGHTERS who have suffered injuries while boxing under the Friendly House banner and others who may receive injuries in future bouts can rest assured their medical expenses will be taken care of from funds derived from the simon-pure show to be staged by the settlement at the Armory Thursday night.

Topped by a tussle between Joe Maxin, National A. A. U. middleweight champion, who hails from Cleveland, and Jake Zacharias, ranking 160-pounder of Mansfield, the show is expected to draw a record gathering. Settlement officials are staging the program to raise money for a boxers' medical fund.

While the Maxin-Zacharias affair leads the billing, another five-round melee between Beauford Glover of Mansfield, Cleveland Golden Gloves lightweight champion, and Frank Franklin, Columbus city titleholder, will be a co-feature.

Another classy Mansfield mittster, Paul Carbetta, 18-year-old bantamweight, will be seeking his third straight triumph in the semi-final five-rounder against Ernie Mossman, top Cleveland 118-pounder.

Carbetta, who has carved a brilliant career in north central Ohio flyweight circles, recently moved into the bantamweight class and has been impressive in his two matches.

* * *

Whether he can dispose of Mossman, a tough infighter, remains to be seen, but from all indications Carbetta should be able to take care of himself. In his last fight against a leading Columbus battler he chopped his rival down in the first round.

* * *

Co-matchmakers John Villella and Mike Wentz have lined up four three-round matches and three preliminary affairs for the show. The prelims, which open the show at 8:15 p. m., will feature the youngsters who make up the boxing classes under the Friendly House supervision.

Alderding Selected As Judge for Boxing Show.

George Alderding, guard-teacher and director of athletics at the Ohio State reformatory, has been selected today by Russ Gimbel, Friendly House director, as one of the judges for the medical benefit amateur boxing show at the Armory Thursday night. He replaces Joe Scanlon who was called out of town on business this week.

HOLD BANQUET

The American Legion Junior baseball team will hold a banquet tonight at 6:30 p. m. in the Legion hall, following which Manager Dewey Durant will give a short talk. Plans for the 1940 season will be discussed at a brief business meeting following the dinner.

Winebrenner Holds Markets To Two Hits In 7-0 Victory

STUB WINEBRENNER is carving a brilliant career for himself in Mansfield softball circles.

* * *

Making his first appearance as a Mansfield moundsman this season, Winebrenner, who recently hurled a no-hit no-run victory over the Isaly Dairys, turned in another win for Tinkey Lumbers yesterday as he limited Morhans Market to two hits in a 7 to 0 triumph at Maple Lake park.

* * *

Winebrenner, who pitched for the Ashland Siler Hatchery last season, fanned 19 batters yesterday in seven innings. He walked two and gave up a double and single.

Meanwhile, the Lumbers went ahead with a run in the first frame to take the lead. They added a run in the fourth, two in the fifth and climaxed their scoring with three in the sixth. Hess hit a home run for the winners.

Redlegs Gain Reputation For Giving Fans Money's Worth

BROOKLYN — (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds may not be making progress, but they're getting a reputation for giving fans plenty of baseball for their money.

* * *

A total of 27 innings, the equivalent of three full games, in two days is the cub's record. After Monday's 14-inning, 8-8 tie with the St. Louis Cardinals, the Rhinelanders battled Brooklyn yesterday for 13 rounds, losing 6 to 5.

* * *

There'll be at least nine more innings of it today, with Gene Thompson, Red sophomore, pitching against Whitlow Wyatt.

Victory put the dauntless Dodgers in the league lead again but Manager Bill McKechnie protested the game because Umpire Bill Klem appeared to have been struck by a ball batted by Charley Gilbert of the Brooks in the seventh. Klem said it missed him. It helped the Dodgers to two runs.

The Reds gave the Dodgers plenty of trouble in dropping the opener of their eastern invasion.

Brooklyn went to work on Bucky Walters, undefeated in five starts for two runs in the first round but Ernie Lombardi cracked Tex Carleton's streak of ten hitless innings at the Reds' expense with a single in the second. Carleton pitched his no-hit game in Cincinnati April 30.

The Rhinelanders got a run on three singles and another when Peter Coscarart threw wild trying to block up an attempted double steal in the fourth.

The Dodgers loaded the bases in the seventh and scored twice. Ernie Koy countered with a run in the ninth [illegible] and went ahead in the [illegible] Mike McCormick's [illegible] run in the major [illegible].

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Like misery, idiocy loves company.

Which, perhaps, is why of all the managers in baseball, from the lowliest bush league to the majors, Frankie Frisch is my favorite.

Anytime any of us behave queerly we have only to think of Frankie Frisch to be consoled by the knowledge that nothing we could ever do would match his voluntary acceptance of the job as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

* * *

Look back a year ago. In 1939 at this time Frisch, after many arduous years in baseball, both as a player and a manager, was settled down in a soft broadcasting job. All he had to do was to report at the Boston ball park when the Bees were in town and describe the game over the air.

For this he was paid a handsome salary. Some guesses fixed his income at as much as $25,000 a year. When the day's game was over his worries ended. He could get up and go home without a thought as to tomorrow's pitcher, batting averages, or the standing of the clubs.

Then Frisch made a decision that must have made every psychiatrist in the country prick up his ears and make a note to add his name to their mailing list. Frisch accepted an offer to manage the Pittsburgh Pirates.

For much less pay he agreed to take charge of a baseball club that didn't have a chance to do any good in the National League this season, and one packed with more problem children than an unfashionable reform school.

* * *

Frisch knew all of this, but, with a declaration that he loved baseball so much that he would make any sacrifice to get back in harness, he jumped at the job.

* * *

Since Frisch took charge, the Pirates have won but six games while losing 13. And Frisch has suffered. They say that while the Pirates were losing nine straight games in the west only loving hands prevented Frisch from swinging on himself with a fungo bat.

Tavern Scores Easy Victory

Graska, Korak Hit Homers as Farm Softballers Lose.

With Graska and Korak contributing home runs, the Urdia Tavern softballers walloped Raemelton Farm, 11 to 4, in a contest at Raemelton Farm yesterday.

The Taverns, who collected 11 hits, hopped into the lead in the second frame with four runs. The winners added four more in the fourth to take a commanding lead. All the Farm team's runs were tallied in the fifth.

* * *

Cervinski, Tavern hurler, struck out 13 and gave up three walks as he limited the losers to seven hits.

Isaly's Whip Kobacker Club

Harner Paces 18-Hit Attack In Softball Triumph.

Charging back with a seven-run rally in the fifth inning, the Isaly Dairy softball club handed Kobacker's store team a 11 to 9 beating at the Armory field yesterday.

* * *

Trailing by a 6 to 4 count going into the fifth, the Dairymen picked up a five-run advantage, but had to throttle a Kobacker spurt in the eighth to emerge with the decision.

* * *

Isaly's got to Pittenger for four markers in the first inning only to see Kobacker's come back with six in the second. Christman kept the losers from scoring until the eighth when they pushed over three markers.

Harner cracked out a home run, double and two singles to pace the Dairys' 18-hit attack. Christman added a triple, double and single to the total. Musille collected three singles for the losers. Incidentally, he was the only Kobacker player to secure more than one hit.

Crack Golfers Off For Open

Begin Second Lap of Race For 1940 Crown.

NEW YOR —(AP)— The crack golf pros, who have had just about enough time to get their laundry done and assure the club presidents they still knew about such duties as giving lessons and polishing clubs since they rode or hitch-hiked back from the winter tour, are off on the second lap of the race for the 1940 national open championship.

* * *

Entries for the open were closed yesterday with one of the largest totals on record. Tomorrow the first big preliminary test for the title tournament at Cleveland's Canterbury club, June 6-8, gets under way

* * *

It is the Goodall round-robin, in which a picked field of 15 pros will play at the Fresh Meadow club on Long Island.

Although the open entries won't be paired up for the sectional qualifying rounds May 27 for another ten days or so, Joe Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf association, put the approximate total at 1,160, the sixth largest in tournament history. Last year it was 1,193 while the 1937 record figure was 1,402.

Stover Protests Fremont Contest In Ninth Inning

Fan Throws Pop Bottle at Brave; Green Sox Chalk Up 8 to 6 Triumph.

THE MANSFIELD BRAVES are back at their wigwam today with another defeat staring them in the face.

Lloyd "Deacon" Joyce, veteran righthander, who made an impressive debut last week, was nominated today by Manager Dewey Stover to face Fremont under the floodlights at 8:15 p. m.

With Dick Otto and George Laurila handling the hurling assignment against the Green Sox at Fremont last night, the Braves dropped and 8 to 6 decision in a game that was played under protest after two were out in the ninth inning.

A fan threw a pop bottle at either Laurila or Dick Morse, third baseman, who allegedly was waving a towel to distract Pitcher Freeh. Stover immediately protested the game.

Mansfield held the lead for a while last night, but weakness on the hill led to its downfall. The Braves were leading, 3 to 1, when the Green Sox teed off against Otto for three markers in the second.

Stover sent Laurila into the tussle, but his slants didn't bother Fremont. They added three runs in the fourth and another in the sixth.

Led by Tim Mangan, Harry Seigbert and Dick Morse, the Braves fought desperately to overtake the winners. Mansfield added a run in the seventh and two in the eighth, but Freeh shut the club out in the ninth to triumph. Mangan, Seigbert and Morse got two hits apiece.

* * *

The defeat dropped the Braves into fifth place in the Ohio State league standings. If Mansfield wins tonight and Fostoria loses, the club can grab third place.

* * *

In the other league tilts last night, Fostoria beat Tiffin, 15 to 6, and Findlay defeated Lima, 11 to 8. Freeh paced Fremont at the plate with a pair of doubles and a triple.

Mack Predicts Either Tribe, Sox as Winner

Connie Says Yankees Will Finish Third.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Lanky Connie Mack, 77 years old and still hoping for another pennant, predicted today the Cleveland Indians or Boston Red Sox would win this year's American league race.

* * *

The Philadelphia Athletics' beaming pilot said the champion New York Yankees would finish third.

* * *

Mack's prediction didn't bring many smiles to the face of Oscar Vitt, Indians' manager. The Athletics shelled Bob Feller from the mound yesterday and squeezed through with a 9 to 7 victory in the first of a two-game series.

"If we can just finish ahead of the Yankees, that will satisfy me," commented Vitt. His tone indicated plainly that he thought the Yanks were the team to beat, even though the Red Sox picked up a full game on the second-place Tribe to go two and a half games in front.

"The pennant race lies between the Indians and the Red Sox," Mack predicted.

* * *

Mack declared much of the credit for sinking the Yankees (so far) belongs to his Athletics and especially Pitcher Chubby Dean, who "proved not once but twice that the Yankees could be beaten." He nominated Dean to start today's game, and Vitt made it a battle of southpaws by telling Al Milnar to be ready.

* * *

The Athletics took a five-run advantage yesterday and the Indians tied it up. Mack's men added two more tallies and Cleveland knotted the score again. In the ninth, with Joe Dobson on the mound, Al Simmons delivered a pinch single with the bases full to make it 9-7. Dobson was charged with the defeat. Hal Trosky hit his eighth home-run of the season with two aboard.

Dodgers Can't Be Accused of Dodging Issue

Go to Grips With Cincinnati Reds, Come Up With 6-5, 13-Inning Victory.

(By Associated Press)

THE BROOKLYN DODGERS can't be accused of dodging the issue.

They went to grips with the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and came up with a 6-5, 13-inning victory that put them back into first place in the National league and that's about all even the Flatbush fans could ask. Three days in second place isn't a very heavy sentence.

The trait you have to like about the dauntless Dodgers is their spirit. They battle for every inch.

It took another extra inning struggle for the Boston Red Sox to edge out the Chicago White Sox 7-6, and Jimmie Foxx, as so often in the past, was the hero for the American league leaders. His second home run of the game and eighth of the season came in the tenth and decided the outcome.

The Cleveland Indians saw the margin between first and second place widened as they lost a 9-7 hitting fray to the Philadelphia Athletics when Al Simmons delivered a pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Gerald Walker took charge of Washington's test against the Detroit Tigers and brought the Senators a 4-2 victory with a two-run homer in the sixth. The victory, credited to Dutch Leonard, lifted Washington from seventh to fifth in the American league.

* * *

Pittsburgh's Pirates pounced on the New York Giants 7-2 to end the Terrymen's six-game winning streak and even an old score against Cliff Melton. The southpaw held them helpless on one hit for five innings, but in the sixth Pittsburgh loaded the bases with three singles, scored one run on a walk, and four more on Elbie Fletcher's homer.

* * *

The Philadelphia Phillies moved over the Cardinals into fifth place in the National with a 4-0 shutout Hugh Mulcahy manipulated against the Redbirds. The Philadelphia righthander kept nine hits scattered and batted in three runs for his own cause.

BETTER

Than We Ever Thought!

The Sunday edition of The News-Journal is just a little more than six months old.

That means we've printed a few more than 26 issues of it, if our arithmetic is right.

Actually, that's not very many papers.

But it has been enough to show a number of important things.

Perhaps the most important is this:

The Sunday News-Journal has ARRIVED.

Frankly, when we started it last October, we thought we had a good idea for a Sunday paper.

But we didn't know how long it was going to take readers of the daily News-Journal in Mansfield and the vicinity to think so for themselves.

Now we've got the answer.

The answer is 26 Sundays.

We're sure of the answer because there hasn't been a single Sunday since the venture began that circulation hasn't gained.

There hasn't been a single week go by that we haven't had a lot of laudatory comments on the Sunday edition.

People have liked the features, the pictures, the local news that bridged the gap between Saturday and Monday, the late telegraph news that kept them abreast of world developments at a critical time in the world's history---as a matter of fact, they've liked everything about the Sunday paper.

Advertisers who have used it regularly have gotten results---good results.

People have not only said they liked the Sunday News-Journal but they've demonstrated it---because more and more of them buy it every Sunday.

Lots of them ask the same question.

They say:

"How can you put out such an interesting, readable paper, with colored comics and all those features for only 3 cents?"

Well, we're doing it---and we're happy about it.

So, at the end of the first half year of its existence, we feel the Sunday News-Journal has, as we said before, ARRIVED.

It's a fixture---a part of the town.

It's going to keep on growing---and it's going to keep on getting better.

And here's just a suggestion to those few people in and near Mansfield who don't subscribe to the Sunday News-Journal:

How Can You Afford NOT To Take It At Only 3 Cents?
